18-20 Student Voters - County Unit to Help

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

When is a student attending college in Ulster County a resident of this county and entitled to vote here and when is he not?

This question, which has plagued the Ulster County Board of Elections for a number of years, has prompted the inauguration of a mobile registration unit which will take to the roads this summer in order to provide expertise on voting rights. It will travel between the highest population centers including New Paltz and Stone Ridge, home of the county's two college campuses and Saugerties and Ellenville.

Experienced election inspectors from the main Election Office in the County Office Building in Kingston will accompany the mobile unit, providing information, especially to the 18 to 20 year old potential voters, many of whom do not know whether they qualify as Ulster County residents or not.

The plan, inaugurated by Election Commissioners Seymour Werbalowsky and Joseph Epstein, is an outgrowth of and a possible solution to the annual dilemma concerning the right of students to vote while living away from their parental home.

"We judge each case on its merits," Werbalowsky explained. As an example he cited the case of a student who lives in New Paltz, resides in his own apartment, has a part time job, has his car registered in Ulster County and doesn't plan to return to his parent's home. "New Paltz is therefore his home," Werbalowsky concedes.

Many such students when applying to register at local town election boards are arbitrarily turned down, he explained. Some appear before local election inspectors in ill-kempt condition, some threatening to 'take over' a town. Consequently they run up against a built-in animosity by the so-called "establishment" and are turned down but in many cases justifiably, he concluded.

Special

But, he added, the problem runs deeper. The local inspectors are not as well versed as the county inspectors and the law is somewhat vague concerning eligible voters.

Werbalowsky said he and Epstein and Deputy Commissioner Valerie L. Q. Sheeley have sought legal opinions from the state but find that "there is no true guidance from the secretary of state." They also have found that surrounding counties interpret the law differently.

As another example that varying interpretations are necessary, Werbalowsky cites the case of a student whose parents have died, and who lives on the New Paltz campus during the school year and during the summer as well. He knows no other home but New Paltz and therefore should be eligible to vote there, he maintains.

Explaining further the Kingston attorney said that the residence requirements of seminarians living in Ulster County were also questioned a number of years ago. The law reads that a seminarian neither gains or loses a residence while at the seminary.

However, the seminarian, in taking his vows, renounced his right to all worldly possessions and therefore renounced his rights to his former home. The Board of Elections goes along the latter contention and consequently the many seminarians in Ulster County have been able to vote here for a number of years.

Werbalowsky concluded saying that any person who seeks to register and is turned down may seek a review before the commissioners or take the matter to court.

The Board of Elections is open for central registration between January 5 and September. Anyone who has moved since voting or anyone reaching the age of 18 before the November 1971 general election is eligible to register. Also, anyone who hasn't voted in one out of two of the last general elections, must register in order to be eligible to vote this year.

Believed Massing for Sepone Attack

KO 5 Soviet-Made Tanks

SAIGON (AP) — A column of 10 North Vietnamese tanks, including five Soviet-made T34 tanks, has been knocked out of action 10 miles southeast of Sepone in Laos by U. S. aircraft and South Vietnamese artillery.

At least three others were hit and left burning, according to spokesmen in the area. It was believed the tanks were massing for an attack on Sepone, a prime transshipment point for enemy supplies which South Vietnamese troops took last weekend.

Sepone is 25 miles west of the Vietnamese-Laotian border and the farthest point west to which the South Vietnamese have advanced.

Fog and low clouds enveloped the Laotian Panhandle today, bringing fighting on the Ho Chi Minh trail to a near-standstill.

The South Vietnamese command reported only light, sporadic action, and the U.S. Command said only 120 helicopters sorties were flown Tuesday in support of the Laotian operation, compared with a previous daily average of 1,000 or more.

Lt. Col. Tran Van An, the South Vietnamese military spokesman in Saigon, said the troops in Laos were building defense fortifications around Sepone, 25 miles west of the border. But he added that under the new tactic of mobility, the government forces have no fixed positions.

The spokesman indicated there had been no further westward movement by South Vietnamese forces beyond the Sepone area 25 miles west of the border. The South Vietnamese in Laos are operating on a front extending about 25 miles south of Sepone and Route 9, and on an undefined and changing front north of the east-west highway.

There was also no significant action reported in the parallel drive by the South Vietnamese into eastern Cambodia, which started Feb. 4. There the Saigon troops have pushed 25 miles into the former Communist sanctuary region and are operating at scattered points along a front of about 50 miles.

Despite the weather over Southern Laos U.S. B52 bombers continued to hammer the Ho Chi Minh trail, and the U.S. Command said tactical fighter-bombers flew 46 strikes in Laos between daybreak Tuesday and dawn today.

The U.S. Command also announced the loss, from unknown causes, of a U.S. Army U21 small jet transport with five men aboard. The two pilots and three enlisted men were listed as missing. The plane disappeared last Thursday in Quang Tri Province, the northernmost province of South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 100 enemy tanks destroyed since the campaign in Laos began Feb. 8. The U.S. Command said this included two 40-ton T54s destroyed late in February by American air strikes around Hill 31.

The T54 is reported to be the heaviest and most powerful in North Vietnam's arsenal, and this was the first report of their use in the war. A spokesman said the two tanks had been identified previously as the light amphibious PT76 type, but a later inspection of aerial photographs showed they were T54s.

Only light scattered ground action in Laos was reported today.

South Vietnamese headquarters said its troops in an area eight miles southwest of the border post of Lao Pao were hit by a 40-round mortar barrage and then clashed with an enemy force of unknown size.

Fourteen of the enemy were reported killed, while the government force lost one man killed and 10 wounded, spokesmen said.

The U.S. Command reported a mistaken artillery firing in which one American soldier was killed and five more were injured. A spokesman said artillery rounds fired by a U.S. 24th Corps Artillery battery landed in the area of another U.S. artillery unit 15 miles west of Khe Sanh Tuesday afternoon. The spokesman said an investigation is under way.

Medina Takes Stand In Lt. Calley Trial

(Combined Services)

FT. BENNING, Ga. — Capt. Ernest Medina, who directed Charlie Company in its bloody sweep of My Lai three years ago, takes the stand today in the trial of his subordinate, Lt. William L. Calley Jr.

Medina, who earlier this week was ordered to stand trial himself on charges of slaying 102 Vietnamese, has been called as a witness by the jury in the Calley trial, a procedure unique to courts-martial.

Calley has testified on five occasions during his trial that Medina gave an order to kill everybody in the village. The captain has denied it.

Still uncertain was whether Medina would testify or invoke the 5th Amendment protection against possibly incriminating himself.

Medina's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, told newsmen Tuesday that his client would testify, although he declined to elaborate on what Medina might say.

"He's never refused to answer questions about My Lai," Bailey said.

Also scheduled to testify at the invitation of the Calley jury are Col. Oran K. Henderson, who was an Americal Division brigade commander and faces trial on charges of covering up the My Lai affair, and S. Sgt. David Mitchell, a squad leader in Calley's platoon. Mitchell was acquitted of assault with intent to murder charges in connection with the My Lai raid.

After 96 witnesses, some of them making two and three appearances, attorneys for both sides—the prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey Daniel, and defense lawyer George Latimer—said Tuesday they had no more testimony to offer about Calley and the Saturday morning in Vietnam when his platoon swept into My Lai.

Daniel suggested that on the two major charges against Calley—the murders of at least 30 in one instance and 70 in another—the jury be given the choice of premeditated murder, unpremeditated murder and acquittal.

The defense said the instructions should include voluntary manslaughter.

Under military law, a verdict of premeditated murder restricts the jury to choosing a sentence of life imprisonment or the death penalty.

Medina, 34, of Montrose Calif., a dark and wiry Mexican-American with a strong face and a commander with the reputation in Vietnam of having a "strong hold" on his men, arrived here late Tuesday on the call of the six-officer Calley jury. He also has been summoned to court-martial for My Lai.

Calley, who was his own star defense witness, testified that he was now, and always would be, proud to have served under a man of Medina's caliber. He said he followed five separate orders from Medina to kill—two during the March 16, 1968, assault on the Vietnamese hamlet and three in briefings prior to it.

Medina has said he would testify in "direct refutation" to Calley. The judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, who will ask the questions of the three jury-called witnesses, said he would let them have their heads for narrative recital. In effect, he said, he would get them on the stand and say: "Tell us what happened."

An Australian Shuffle – Still Pro-Viet

JOHN GORTON
. . . The Deciding Vote

CANBERRA (UPI)—The ruling Liberal Party ousted John G. Gorton as prime minister of Australia today and named Foreign Minister William McMahon to replace him. Gorton cast the deciding vote at the Party meeting—against himself.

McMahon immediately pledged Australia's continuing Allied support in Vietnam, and both the nation's foreign and domestic policy was expected to remain unchanged.

The opposition Labor Party called for national elections to determine the new prime minister, Australia's 20th, but Governor General Sir Paul Hasluck followed normal parliamentary procedure and named McMahon to lead the government.

McMahon also appointed Gorton as the defense minister in his new cabinet, a move seen as a conciliatory gesture aimed at cementing the cracks in the Liberal Party.

Gorton's ouster centered over charges by resigned Defense Minister Malcolm Fraser that Gorton had used his office to undermine the political effectiveness of those he found in disagreement with him, including senior members of his government.

Fraser specifically charged Gorton sided with the Army against the defense ministry over an issue as to how and when civil aid programs administered by the Australian Army in Vietnam were to be curtailed and eventually ended.

At today's caucus of parliamentary members of Gorton's Liberal Party the matter came to a vote on whether Gorton should remain as Party leader—and as such prime minister.

Gorton abstained, but when the vote came out at a 33-33 tie, as presiding officer he looked around the room, smiled, and then said: "I make the motion as a negative." With that, he stepped down from the leader's chair and left Party members to pick his successor. McMahon, 63, noted for being a hard worker, was chosen by a heavy majority over Bill Snedden, Minister for Labor and National Services.

Gorton, who became prime minister after Harold Holt was drowned Dec. 17, 1967, gave no explanation why he voted against himself but observers said he felt he probably could not hold his party together if the matter came to a vote of confidence in Parliament. They also noted he has a reputation as a loner who often does the unexpected.

McMahon, asked about his attitude to foreign policy and particularly Australia's role in Vietnam, said "Australia's government policy on Vietnam has never been more strongly pressed than by me. That will continue."

The Liberal party's members in Parliament caucused today and voted 33-33 on retention of Gorton as party leader and prime minister. Gorton abstained, then said he had lost the confidence of the party and voted against himself.

McMahon, a 63-year-old political veteran who has been in Parliament for two decades, was then elected party leader. But the party stunned political observers by choosing Gorton to succeed McMahon as deputy leader.

More musical chairs appeared in prospect. Gorton is likely to become defense minister, the post Fraser quit. And there was speculation Fraser would return to the Cabinet.

Although small (5 feet 4) McMahon is a physical fitness buff and is a top squash player.

He is a lawyer and a member of a wealthy Sydney family, and has served in the Australian House of Representatives since 1949.

McMahon is married to a glamorous blonde, Sonia, and has two children, a boy and a girl.

On foreign affairs, he is noted as a friend of the United States and a firm believer that Australia must remain active in Southeast Asia.

Mrs. McMahon is the youngest and most glamorous first lady Canberra has ever had.

Tall, blonde, willowy, with a flashing smile and a friendly informal manner, Mrs. McMahon, 38, exudes charm. They were married in 1965.

Shokan Home Destroyed, 'Mass of Flesh' in Ruins

By WALTER S. CLARK

WEST SHOKAN

State Police BCI officers and pathologists at the Kingston Hospital today were endeavoring to determine whether a "mass of flesh" found in the ruins of the home of Raymond Kelder on Route 28A in this community, could be the remains of a human being or an animal, after the residence was swept by fire.

BCI Investigator Thomas Searles said that Kelder could not be located after the fire.

Meanwhile, Newburgh state police pressed investigation into an explosion-fire that swept through units of the Rhoda Courts Motel on Route 9W in Balmville yesterday, resulting in critical burns suffered by 53-year-old Russell Smith, of 59 Cross Street, Beacon.

Three companies from the Olive Fire Department with 50 men in charge of Chief Albert Fox, were dispatched to the Kelder home about 10 p.m. Tuesday after fire was reported at the residence, Fox said that when firemen arrived they found the building completely enveloped in flames.

Water was pumped from the Jackey Brook near the Watson Hollow Inn, as volunteers battled the flames and saved a garage four feet from the burning house on a neighbor's property. Fox commended firemen for their good work in fighting the fire in 15 degree temperature that caused ice to form on hoselines and equipment.

After the fire was quelled, firemen found the "mass of flesh" and state police and Ulster County Coroner Henry S. Hartley were notified.

Newburgh State Police today are still probing the explosion-fire that swept through several units of the Rhoda Courts Motel on Route 9W in Balmville, north of Newburgh.

Troopers reported that a gas cylinder on the back of Unit 6 of the motel went empty and the gas company was notified. An employe responded with a full tank of gas and inadvertently attached the cylinder to the rear of unit 7 by mistake. That tank was not connected with the fuel line.

The gas from the tank seeped through the area and entered a storage shed at the rear of Unit 7 and soon the fumes swept unnoticed into the unit occupied by Smith, troopers said.

The Southern Dutchess County man lit a cigarette and simultaneously there was a terrific explosion and flames flashed through the structure.

Smith was carried from the building and rushed by ambulance to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh. He was treated for second and third degree burns of the entire body. Later he was transferred to Jacobi Hospital in the Bronx where his condition was listed as critical.

According to investigators witnesses said they smelled gas just before the explosion and the source of the fumes was being checked when the fire occurred.

St. Bernard Ready for More Snow

This snowy St. Bernard looking for the traditional collar and keg attests to the fact it has been a rough winter locally. The artistic departure from traditional snow people was created by Karen, 10; Ricky, 9 and Kathy, 12, children of Richard M. Miller of 90 Tubby Street. In case these three creative Meagher School pupils are interested more snow is in the forecast for late tonight and continuing into Thursday morning. Although the predictions are for under three inches of accumulation, the Miller children might find enough snow to create a small dog companion for the masterful St. Bernard. ON KINGSTON STAGE TONIGHT — Barbara Britton, lovely star of stage, screen and television, graces the boards of the Community Theater tonight for an appearance in the uproarious comedy, Forty Carats. Plenty of seats are still available for tonight's live performance at 8:30 o'clock, including many choice ones. Miss Britton's appearance in Kingston is the first of three special shows to be brought here by the American Theatre League Inc. Other upcoming stage features will be Plaza Suite and the musical Zorba. Single tickets may be purchased for each presentation.

Petition Against Proposed Broadway Mall

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON — A petition with 71 signatures opposing development of the proposed Central Broadway shopping mall was presented to the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association prior to their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Most of the signees were from the Van Deusen, Van Buren and Prospect Street area where preliminary plans call for the mall to be located.

Members of the Businessmen's Association, however, questioned the legitimacy of the petition. Edward Arace, president of the group, said that there was a duplication of family members in some instances and that some of the signees did not reside in the proposed project area. Others, he added, did not own property in the area.

Addresses were not included on the petition and Arace noted that, in some cases, one person evidently signed for other members of the family, including children.

The petition was presented to the businessmen by an unidentified woman. None of the signees were in attendance at the meeting.

The petition called on the businessmen to find another section in the central part of the city where the mall could be located, and where it would affect a fewer number of people. As an alternative, it suggested that the city buy and remodel all of the existing business buildings along Central Broadway.

Arace later said that he felt "those who signed the petition are misinformed." He emphasized that "no property owner will be paid less than the actual value of the home and land."

"No action will be taken until suitable housing is found for all of the displaced families. Everything will be done to ease the hardships of the displaced families," said Arace.

In a related matter, Arace said that the Businessmen's Association has been approached by two other developers with plans to erect "modern housing" in the Central Broadway area.

The proposed mall is expected to displace some 70 families currently located on some 60 parcels of land in the area.

It was noted that the association will staff a booth at the Kingston Lions Club Exposition in order to present detailed plans and drawings to the public.

Meanwhile, plans on the mall are continuing undaunted. It s expected that Mayor Francis R. Koenig will present code enforcement plans, calling for demolition of some 40 buildings in the area, to Housing and Urban Development officials in New York City later this month. The plans must be approved by federal officials before the city can declare the seven-acre area a redevelopment area, paving the way for demolition of the homes and construction of the mall.

Late Moves In Rosendale

ROSENDALE — Last minute moves are underway in both camps as the date for Rosendale's village elections draws near.

A spokesman for Carl P. Grassi, Conservative candidate for Mayor, said today that Grassi has appealed Monday's State Supreme Court ruling that removed him from the Republican line on the ballot.

Richard Priest, Republican candidate for trustee, has also appealed a ruling that denied him the Conservative Party line.

Walter Byer, Grassi's campaign manager, said this morning that attorneys for Joseph S. Reid and William Ritter, Democratic candidates for Mayor and Trustee respectively, were served with legal papers late Tuesday afternoon.

The case is expected to be heard in Appellate Division of State Supreme Court today or Thursday.

Byer would not comment on the basis of the appeal.

Grassi was denied Republican backing because the Republican Committee in Rosendale had reportedly failed to file a certificate of authorization with the Town Clerk Priest was denied Conservative endorsement because his certificate of authorization was filed by the county Conservative Party rather than by the town's committee.

While Grassi and Priest were fighting to restore their Conservative-Republican ticket, Reid and Ritter were issuing another campaign statement.

Urging a "return to a hard working government and a revival of the spirit of cooperation," Reid urged that the voters reject Grassi's bid for reelection.

Probing for the voters' most sensitive nerve — taxes — Reid said, "A house that is assessed at $6,000 had a tax of $67.08 in the last Reid administration, and a proposed tax of $60.42 for 1969-70. But, during the Curran (William P. Curran) administration that same house was taxed at $76.81 and today, under Mayor Grassi, that same house has a tax of $90.64."

"If you want relief from overweight taxes that go up and up while services go down and down, vote Reid and Ritter," stated the former Mayor.

The village elections are March 16.

West Asks Partial Moratorium On Construction in Woodstock

WOODSTOCK — A partial moratorium on changes and construction of properties in the Woodstock Water District and Extensions, has been called for by County Legislator William R. West (R-Dist. 12).

The move is being made because West feels that "fine progress is being made toward the solution of Woodstock sewerage problems" but, "I'm still greatly concerned about any possible compounding of the existing situation prior to the completion of the sewage disposal system."

In a letter to Harry Edinger, environmental sanitary engineer for the Ulster County Department of Health, West recommends that the department enact a partial moratorium on all new commercial or residential construction, on all commercial and residential additions or alterations and on all changes or modifications of use of any existing commercial or residential structure or facility.

He asks that "all exceptions to this partial moratorium be made by the Health Department only by special individual and written approval of each proposed project, addition or change of use."

West suggests a joint meeting between Edinger, the Town Board and himself to discuss the matter further and consider the means by which a moratorium could be implemented.

Concluding, West said that a partial moratorium will go a long way toward preventing any potential sewerage problems in Woodstock before the construction of a sewage disposal system.

In July of 1970, the Town Board authorized the firm of Brinnier and Larios to make a survey report study on the feasibility of establishing such a district.

Prep School Building Destroyed by Fire

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (UPI)—A general alarm fire has destroyed most of the main classroom and administration building at Cornwall Academy, a private prep school for boys in the Berkshires.

Headmaster John Geddes Moran estimated $250,000 damage to the school in the fire which was believed to have started in a student's room shortly after noon Tuesday.

Moran said water to fight the blaze had to be pumped from the Green River, an eighth of a mile away, because the school has no hydrants.

Forty of the school's 93 students lived in the main wing which also housed classrooms, administrative offices and the kitchen and dining room, Moran said.

Sojourner Truth Actress At Bailey School Thursday

FATIMA M. ZEIN

KINGSTON — Fatima M. Zein, Washington, D.C., actress who played the Sojourner Truth role in Jay Williams' "Ballad of the Black Dragon," sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution, will present excerpts from the play for students at the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School Thursday at 2:15 p.m., announced Stephen Hyatt, principal.

Her appearance at the school is one of a series of actions being taken throughout the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated, to acquaint students with Sojourner Truth, who was born in Hurley and in later years became one of the country's better-known evangelists and champions of human rights.

Miss Zein has appeared in numerous stage, radio and television productions during her career.

Rocky to Propose Welfare Reform

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI — Governor Rockefeller, in one of the most conservative moves of his 12 - year administration, will soon propose a major overhaul of the state's welfare system to control spiraling costs and meet legislative demands for budget cuts.

The proposal follows closely on the heels of Assemblyman H. Clark Bell's suggestion that welfare families take a 25 per cent cut in their allowances.

Bell's plan would limit the typical family of four — generally a mother with three small children — to $43 a week, plus funds for heat, light, rent, medical and dental expenses. Food stamps would also be available.

Informed sources said Tuesday that Rockefeller's plan includes provisions putting able-bodied recipients to work and banning newcomers to the state from the already swollen welfare rolls.

The overhaul may help cut his $8.5 billion budget and the accompanying $1.1 billion in higher taxes. It comes just a few weeks after California Gov. Ronald Reagan proposed slashing his state's welfare budget by $575 million.

Rockefeller reportedly feels the state no longer has the resources to pay for 20 per cent annual increases in welfare. Welfare costs for the coming year are pegged at $1.2 billion, up $234 million from last year. An estimated 1.8 million persons will receive some kind of aid.

"With the disparity of welfare payments between New York and other states, we have an awful lot of people coming here overloading our system to the point some of them end up living in the Waldorf Astoria," Rockefeller said Tuesday night. "I also think that those who, under the intent of the law should be working, should take a job."

The governor said he is against proposals by the state legislature to make across-the-board cuts in welfare benefits.

"I don't think the right way to go about this is to penalize those who are most desperate to get to those who shouldn't be on the rolls," Rockefeller said.

While the governor's statement made no reference to specific programs, sources close to Rockefeller said he was considering:

— Prohibiting out-of-staters, or people who move from one city to another within the state, from receiving welfare if there is not housing, schools and hospitals available in the city they move to.

— Proposing strict enforcement of a now generally ignored state law cutting off benefits to able bodied recipients who refuse work.

— Creating an Environmental Conservation Corps to "make work" for welfare recipients. This was one of the governor's campaign proposals.

There was no immediate estimate of the funds that would be saved from this proposal. Some said, however, that it would not realize the $200 million or more lawmakers want to chop from the state welfare budget.

Denying aid to newcomers presents a constitutional problem to the Rockefeller administration. The state law imposing a one-year residency requirement on welfare recipients has been struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The approach being studied would involve a new state health law denying benefits to newcomers when available facilities are full to capacity. Thus, if a city did not have housing for incoming welfare cases, they could be denied regular assistance, given temporary aid and a ticket back to where they came from.

Tornado Toll—One Dead, 10 Hurt

By United Press International

Tornadoes killed one person and injured 10 others in Texas and Louisiana and a snowstorm swept across the Midwest into the East today.

A twister ripped through Kenner, La., a New Orleans suburb, shortly before dawn, killing one person, injuring five others and knocking out power to half the town. Police said 15 to 20 homes were heavily damaged as the tornado whipped through a residential area.

A Jefferson County sheriff's deputy said the storm also ripped apart the Mardi Gras Motel in Kenner.

Five persons sustained minor injuries as a tornado touched down at Channelview, Tex., 15 miles east of Houston, late Tuesday night. The funnel ripped off shingles and metal roofs, uprooted huge trees, snapped roof beams and tossed a house trailer containing the five victims on top of an automobile.

Neighbors kicked out the back window of the trailer to free the five persons trapped inside.

In the East, residents of Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland were braced for yet another snowstorm.

Travelers' warnings were posted for northwest Ohio, where one to three inches of snow as expected. West Virginia and much of Virginia and Maryland were under a heavy snow watch, and up to four inches of snow was expected in those areas.

Inclement weather was common over much of the Mississippi and Ohio Valley regions.

Snow was reported from Iowa to northern Indiana. Rockford, Ill., got four inches of snow in six hours. Chicago had three inches of new snowfall.

Snow-slicked roads claimed three lives in Milton, Iowa, Tuesday. Three Milton women, all members of the same family, were killed when their Volkswagen collided with an oil transport truck.

Chicago's three inches of snow was expected to melt before the morning rush hour as temperatures rose.

To the south, heavy thunderstorms were battering parts of Mississippi and Lousiana.

Winds clocked at 100 miles an hour lashed De Ridder, La., marble-sized hail was reported at Opelausas, La., and Hope, Ark.

In much of the remainder of the nation, fair skies and seasonally normal temperatures were the rule.

A little light rain was moistening portions of the Pacific Northwest but the amounts were inconsequential, in general.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 3 above zero at Marquette, Mich., to 67, at both Key West, Fla., and Brownsville, Tex.

Committee Reaffirms Casey As Securities, Exchange Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee has reaffirmed its approval of William J. Casey to head the Securities and Exchange Commission after Republicans charged SEC staff members were trying to smear him.

Committee Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., who voted for Casey, said the New York tax attorney's nomination probably will come up in the Senate early next week.

Casey was grilled for five hours Tuesday about various lawsuits and business dealings in which he had been involved, but denied wrongdoing.

After the hearing the committee went into executive session and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., moved to reconsider a tentative approval of the nominee given Feb. 10.

The motion was tabled by a 9-3 vote, killing Proxmire's effort and allowing the earlier approval to stand.

Casey conceded he left some erroneous impressions with the committee at his first appearance in February but insisted he never intended to mislead. The trouble was faulty recollection, he said.

He said the five lawsuits in which he had been involved, three as a defendant and two as a plaintiff, were a small number and a minor matter in an active business and legal career extending back 33 years.

Before Casey testified opponents produced a surprise witness.

Judge J. Braxton Carven Jr. of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals, who presided nine years ago at a New York plagiarism suit in which Casey was a defendant, contradicted three points made by the nominee at the February hearing.

Casey agreed he was in error in some of these statements. He said Carven's memory was faulty on some points, too.

First U.S. Moon Buggy Set for Apollo 15 Trip

KENT, Wash. (AP) — The first U.S. moon buggy, a spacecraft with wire wheels, telescoping fenders and chair-like seats, is ready three weeks ahead of its scheduled delivery date, the Boeing Co. says.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration accept it formally today in ceremonies at Boeing's Space Center in this Seattle suburb.

Shipment of the 10-foot long collapsible lunar rover vehicle to Cape Kennedy is due early next week, a Boeing spokesman said.

There it eventually will be tucked into the Apollo 15's lunar landing module for a July flight to the moon.

Astronauts David R. Scott and James Irwin are scheduled to drive the battery-powered runabout up to three miles from their landing site.

Loaded with twice its own weight in astronauts' experiments and lunar samples, the 450-pound LRV will float Scott and Irwin on deep moon dust, the V-shaped bands on its mesh wheels providing traction in the grit.

The LRV is designed to climb over obstacles up to a foot high, cracks as much as 28 inches wide, and scoot up or down slopes slanting as much as 28 degrees.

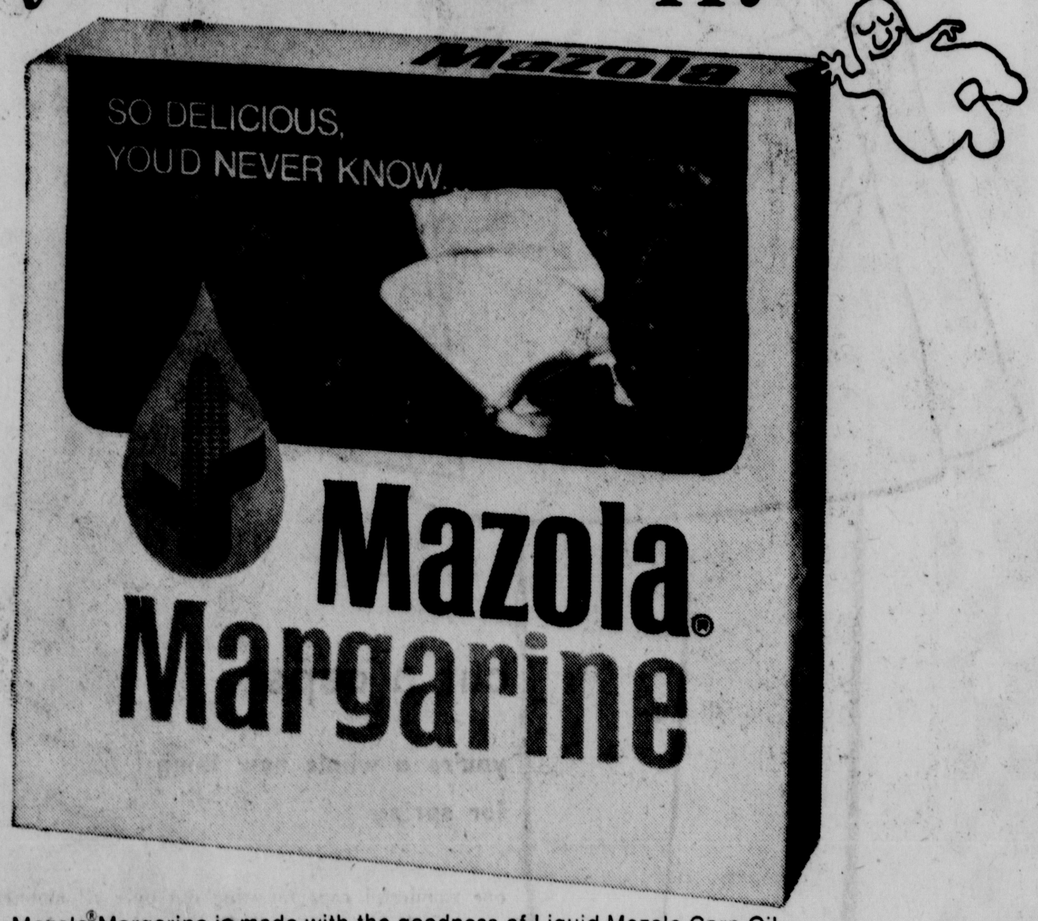

For comparison, the family car faces highway grades of about 6 per cent, can be stalled by street curbing and is jarred stoutly by small potholes in roads. It also carries only half its own weight.

The LRV can travel up to 10 miles an hour on smooth surfaces, Boeing says, although the astronauts will travel more slowly.

Seated in webbing covered frames of metal tubing, each astronaut will be able to use the driving controls mounted in the center between them.

Their navigation will be aided by a small computer in the front end, where batteries provide the energy to drive each wheel's electric hub-mounted motor.

Jewish Festival of Purim to Begin Tonight

KINGSTON

The Festival of Purin, known as the Feast of Lots, will be celebrated by the Jewish people beginning with the reading of the Megillah, which is the Scriptural Book of Esther, tonight and ending with the Purim Feast Thursday evening.

Purim is the gayest of all Jewish observances, as it marks the commemoration of the day about 2,500 years ago, when in ancient Persia, the arch enemy of the Jews, met his own downfall. The emperor of Persia had appointed Haman as prime minister, and the new prime minister wanted everyone to bow down to him. The Jew, Mordecai, refused to do so, and this gave the Jew-hater an alibi for his desire to annihilate the Jewish people.

Haman was close to success in this vile scheme of his, and he had already cast lots, which in Persian is "purim", to decide on which day to carry out his plan. But the emperor had recently taken a new queen unto himself, a Jewess, whose name was Esther, and who was the cousin of the Jewish leader, Mordecai. The emperor was unaware of these two facts.

When Mordecai heard of Haman's plot, and informed the queen, shes first asked that all the Jewish people should fast and pray for deliverance. The day before Purim is therefore called the Fast of Esther. Then she went to the king to invite him and his prime minister to a banquet, and at the banquet she disclosed that she was of the Jewish people, the people that Haman was planning to destroy. The emperor had also been made aware of the fact that Mordecai, the Jew, had at one time saved his life from an assassination plot.

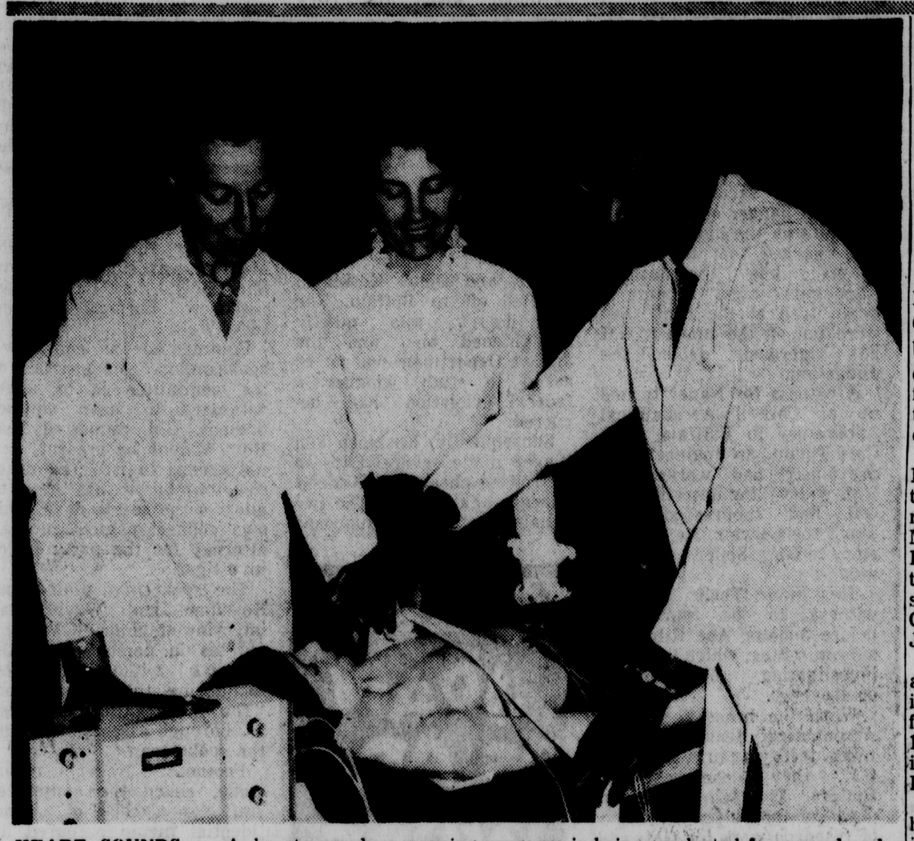

The king now had good reason for being angry at Haman, and so he ordered him to be hung on the gallows that Haman had prepared for Mordecai. In this manner the Jewish people, as all of them were living in the provinces under Persian rule, were saved from extinction.

This story is told in Scripture, in the Book of Esther, which is read in the synagagues on the Eve of the holiday. During the reading, graggers or noise-makers are used whenever the name of Haman is heard in the reading. Purim balls and Carnivals are the order of the day, and special pastry called Hamantashen, which are in the shape of Haman's hat, are eaten. Children especially enjoy the holiday as parties and masquerades are held for them.

This year, at Ahavath Israel, 100 Lucas Avenue, the Megillah will be read tonight 7 p.m. This will be followed by a mask party for the children, and awards will be given for the most appropriate costome. The party will be sponsored by the Sisterhood of the congregation. A carnival will also be staged by the members of the USY the youth group.

Saturday night, March 13, a Purim Ball will held in the auditorium of Congregation Ahavath Israel, sponsored by the Jewish Community Council, for the entire Jewish community.

Purim activities will start at Temple Emanuel, 243 Albany Avenue tonight 6 p.m. with a Purim carnival and Megillah Reading for all religious school students, their families and friends. Those attending will bring a box supper. Beverages and Hamentashen will be provided. Students with birthdays in December, January February and March will be honored at this time.

Congressman Fish Introduces Detergent Bill

KINGSTON

A bill to ban detergents containing phosphates and other agents causing water pollution in the United States has been introduced by Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. The congressman also joined a bipartisan group of 100 members of Congress this week in a protest against the Department of Agriculture's decision to kill a special milk program which provided free milk to one-third of the nation's school children.

Fish, with 40 bipartisan sponsors seek to amend the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to eliminate phosphates in detergents and establish national environmental standards on all detergent ingredients. The bill was inspired by the pioneer action taken in Suffolk County which has outlawed detergents, limiting sale and use to only soap and soap flakes.

Congressman Fish said the legislation is needed because of "industry's foot dragging approach to the problem of polyphosphates on our environment.

Noting that the nation has delayed too long in banning toxic-persistent pesticides, Congressman Fish said, "we cannot afford to allow the same tragedy to develop with detergents."

With regard to the legislation on milk, Fish said that the Department of Agriculture admits the program provides the only fluid milk that many of the children in the low income areas receive, in addition to serving children in non-profit nursery school, summer camps and settlement houses.

Fish pointed out that in 1970 the House and Senate approved legislation making the Special Milk Program a permanent part of the Child Nutrition Act, and authorized the spending of $125 million for each successive fiscal year.

The letter, noting "the incongruity of omitting funds so specifically and willingly provided by an overwhelming majority of both the House and Senate," asked Whitten to provide this year's Special Milk Program with at least the $103 million provided in fiscal year 1971.

Pollution Won't Kill Us

Out of the welter of pessimism that pollution will kill us comes the voice of Rene Dubos, microbiologist and experimental pathologist at Rockefeller University, who flatly discounts fears that man's impact on nature will render his environment unlivable.

"Man has been modifying the earth ever since he was a Stone Age hunter," Dr. Dubos pointed out. "Wherever man has been he has destroyed the forests and drained the marshes. There is not a blade of grass in England which is not man-made. The prairies themselves were created by man and his fires. The Pennsylvania Dutch country was once covered by forests." He might have added that it is rich farmland now.

Dr. Dubos sees an end of what he called the quantitative phase of technological development, in which the emphasis has been on massive growth, with all the pollution it produced. This will be replaced, he predicted by a period of qualitative change in which men will learn to adjust their style of living to the facts of life.

Changes now being made by man will not destroy man but may lead to sharp changes in his way of living, Dr. Dubos said. Electrical power production, for instance, will reach a plateau within the next 30 years. Individual transportation will reach a saturation point in the same period. Both these crises will be met by adjustments in people's lives—homes will be designed to permit natural air conditioning instead of power consuming air conditioners. The use of automobiles in cities will be restricted.

A long-range thinker like Dr. Dubos, a man who has won awards in his field from many countries, and whose books are widely used as texts, puts problems like environmental studies in their proper place. We can breathe easier about our environment after hearing him.

Highways and Parks

Parks were put ahead of highways in an unanimous Supreme Court decision, which was a victory for conservationists. The ruling held that federally financed highways may not be built through parks except in the most unusual situations. It strictly interpreted for the first time laws passed in 1966 and 1968 to help preserve the environment.

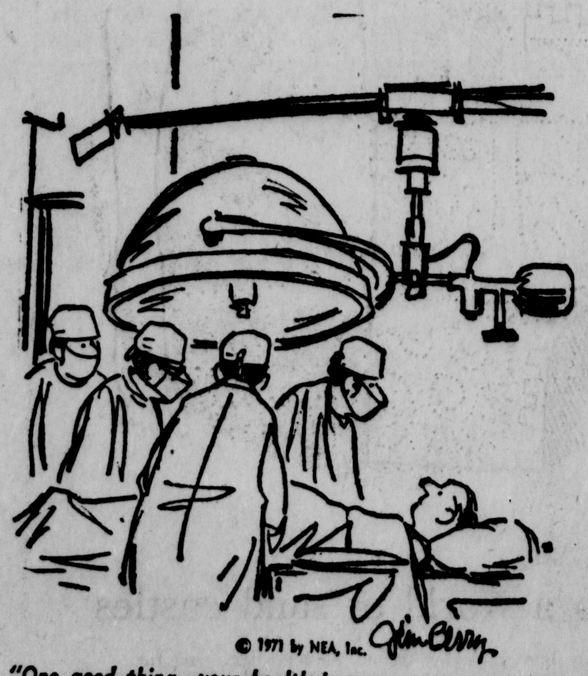

The court ordered a thorough probing in-depth review by a district court of the government's approval of a six-lane stretch of Interstate 40 through Overton Park in Memphis, despite strong commitment and heavy investment in the park route.

Justice Thurgood Marshall laid the ground rules for court review of highway construction decisions. In his opinion, he rejected the government's claim of broad discretion under laws prohibiting park routes unless there is a "feasible and prudent" alternative. He substituted the words "arbitrary and capricious" for the action of the Transportation Department in destroying scenic areas.

Justices Hugo L. Black and William J. Brennan Jr. went further. In their concurring opinion, they said the case should be sent all the way back to the department for lack of evidence that the government had "raised even a finger to comply with the command of Congress." The decision is a warning to run highways around parks, not through them.

Thousands of students are bored to the point of dullness in the classes of most secondary schools is the testimony of education experts in support of President Nixon's proposal to create a National Institute of Education (NIE) to test new teaching methods. Original ways must be found, for the sake of the bright, as well as the backward students.

David Lawrence Says
Critics Hurt America's Reputation for Resoluteness

WASHINGTON — The latest Gallup Poll shows that the people surveyed think the Nixon administration, like the Johnson administration before it, is "not telling the American people all they should know" about the Vietnam War, and that they feel the war isn't being handled right. But if another poll of the same persons were taken, it would no doubt be found that very few of them understand military operations and that not many have examined a map of Southeast Asia and learned what Cambodia and Laos mean to the future safety of the South Vietnamese.

The protection of South Vietnam depends on disruption of a number of intricate supply routes that can at any moment be utilized for invasion of the country in which the United States has more than 300,000 troops. Cambodia and Laos are small countries, but they form most of the western boundary of South Vietnam. It is inconceivable that the American armed services could leave the South Vietnamese secure without the destruction of the supply centers and bases which have been established by the North Vietnamese in Laos and Cambodia. This has been explained again and again by the Nixon administration.

The politicians who hope to make votes out of the anti-war issue never miss a chance to utter some form of criticism. This is regarded as news. It gets wide publicity and comment on radio and TV and in the press. In public relations, the administration is on the defensive and tends to lose opportunities to take the counter-offensive by denouncing the kind of opposition which is being voiced against it.

When an administration is attacked in Congress, it isn't considered good tactics for a president to reply to every criticism, and usually much of the adverse comment is passed by. This builds up a public opinion which actually is led to believe that the Vietnam War has no worthy purpose and that, by demanding a prompt withdrawal of all our troops, the nation will be relieved of war and the young men of draft age will be spared any military service.

The net result is that a national poll is likely to find lots of people against the Vietnam War without their having thought very much about the possibility a third world war could ensue if the United States deserted its allies in Asia.

Rarely mentioned by anyone are the amounts of money spent by the Soviet Union to aid Hanoi and the large sums which the supplies furnished to the North Vietnamese have cost Red China. Yet the administration and members of Congress would be performing a service in exposing the extent to which the Moscow and Peking regimes have gone in helping to kill American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Before each of the two world wars, political ground was gained by members of both parties who took the isolationist side of the argument. In both instances, totalitarian governments in Germany misconstrued this as a sign of weakness, and major wars were started in Europe on the theory that the United States would not cooperate with nations abroad. When this country eventually had to send its armed forces to play a decisive part in both world wars, it might have been assumed that isolationism would not be politically popular again.

But today, due to a failure of the people to learn for themselves the facts about Southeast Asia and the simple truths about the need for secrecy in military operations, there seems again to be a mood of assent to what is being said by the politicians who want to have America leave Vietnam and forget all about its responsibilities there and elsewhere abroad.

Meanwhile, the resoluteness with which the United States has pursued the war has impressed many nations, among who there is a feeling that the anti-war politicians here will not prevail. Various foreign governments, on the other hand, are nervous about any sign that pledges or commitments made in existing treaties will be ignored. In Europe, the United States is expected to support the North Atlantic Treaty — which, by the way, calls for military response the moment agression against a signatory nation occurs without waiting for action by Congress.

The best way to prevent a war is to let the enemy know we are prepared to deal instantly with an attack. The critics in Congress have not helped to maintain America's reputation for resoluteness.

WINTER HAS WORN OUT HIS WELCOME

Winter is a bad house guest. It comes early, stays late. For a while we watch it paint rounded hills in percale white; we awaken to see thousands of diamonds sparkle on an ordinary pane of window glass; bony icicles hang from the eaves, weeping down their fingertips. There is stunning beauty in a stately pine holding sheaves of snow on its limbs, or an old rowboat gripped solid on a frozen lake.

The trouble with Winter is that he ruins his beautiful paintings. The rounded hills, in time, stand in rusty snow; frosty diamonds slide down the window; icicles snap their knuckles and collapse; a pine branch breaks; floating chunks of ice rap the rowboat. Winter brings his imperious chill to the house, and he was never known to take a hint.

Whether he leaves late or not, Winter must go. At best, he's untrustworthy, for I have seen him depart and I watched the early forsythia emerge like canary lace. A week later, Winter is back, slamming doors, rattling windows, and spinning a whirling top of snow down the street. At his worst, he will do this two or three times. He breaks skid chains and makes them do a cha-cha on weak fenders.

Treacherous, that's the word for Winter. His Christmas paintings are great, but in March and April he dabbles in flying slush. Once, I had a deep affection for Winter and, in November, I would study a blue slate sky and pray for those fat lazy flakes to rest like little feathers on the palm of my hand.

I built snow forts in his name and made pyramids of snowballs while waiting for the enemy across the street to fire. I waxed the runners of a Flexible Flyer and belly-whopped down Grant Avenue from the Boulevard almost to West Side Avenue. I massaged the rust from ice skates to try speed on glassy lakes and I molded icy funny faces of my father and told him it was my mother's brother Willy.

Winter was good to me and my memory respects the good things. But, even then, he stayed on at our house much too long. I tired of the heavy coat, the kitchen fire roaring too hot and the living room freezing. I dreamt of Spring and new arms on an old rose vine, the white confetti from an apple tree, the long-stemmed colored cups of tulips.

I pounded a baseball into a fielder's mitt in the cellar. I could hear the crack of a bat and the roar of the crowd. The girls, aloof and snippy, would be jumping rope on the sidewalk, turning to watch you when they were sure you weren't looking. That was another kind of Springtime.

At last — at very long last — the soft breezes became plush against the cheek and a dozen sprigs of pussy willow were in a vase on the teacher's desk. The sun was like a lost buddy come home. It was so bright and strong you couldn't look at it even if you squinted. We played stickball on the sewer plate, which was home base, and we argued about who was safe and who was out. If it was the kid who owned the ball, he was safe.

We went to church at Easter in new suits, and Adele had a pink dress with a big bow in the back. Three of us walked two paces in front of our parents, nodding at people they nodded to, and trying to smile in a Buster Brown collar.

Then Winter would come back. Somehow, he always sneaked in at night, whistling a dolorous tune around the edges of the roof and, if you hunched up tight and quiet in bed, you could hear the hail rapping on a window nobody would open. He would toss a thin skein of snow with the ice, and, in the morning the road was shiny. The wooden telephone poles were plastered with glass on one side, the black trees held their arms up in surrender.

Winter has lost my respect. He has no class. Anything which hogs stage center after the curtain is down must be an egomaniac. Sometimes he stayed a few weeks, or a week. The pussy willows, the tulips were stilled in fright as though Winter had aimed a gun at them and said: "Freeze!"

This week, I will begin to dwell upon Spring, that sentimental season when the world and everything in it is born anew. Already I have seen fresh blades of grass, greener than the old. I have seen a little boy hippety-hopping on one roller skate. A few ladies have old Spring coats on hangers over bedroom doors, studying them, finger in mouth. These are good signs.

Winter, buzz off!...

Jack Anderson Says
GM Rolls Out Red Carpet For Congress' Corvair Probers

WASHINGTON — Ralph Nader and General Motors are engaged in a new backstage battle over the Corvair, with these startling developments:

1. Two congressional gumshoes, sent to Detroit to probe GM, were chauffeured around by the company in gleaming limousines. As a return courtesy, they allowed GM's general counsel to sit in on their confidential interviews.

2. A potential congressional witness was warned he might lose his job if he testified. The warning was rescinded 24 hours later after an issue was made of it.

Nader has accused GM of suppressing facts about the potential danger of the 600,000 Corvairs on the highways. He has charged that the motor company knew the dashing little cars might become a death trap at the time they were put on the market. GM has vigorously denied the allegation.

A witness for Nader turned up at Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory in Bufffalo, N.Y. Carl Thelin, an engineer who previously had worked for GM, was willing to testify that GM had suppressed data about the Corvair. He told his story to Gary Sellers, a Nader aide.

This made Thelin a likely witness to be summoned before Senator Abe Ribicoff's subcommittee, which has been investigating the Corvair controversy.

When the brass at Cornell Aeronautical learned Thelin might testify against the giant GM, they developed the flutters. The lab does hundreds of thousands of dollars of research work for GM, and they didn't want to alienate such a blue-chip customer.

Witness Threatened

Thelin's boss, division head Bill Milliken, was assigned to explain the facts of corporate life to Thelin. Milliken began by assuring Thelin that his job was in no jeopardy if he confined his testimony to GM. But Milliken cautioned him not to discuss the lab's work at the Senate hearings. As the conversation wore on, however, Thelin asked what would happen if he appeared before the Ribocoff committee.

As Thelin recalls it, Milliken said: "If you go there, you might not have anything to come back to."

It is a federal violation to interfere with a congressional witness. But Milliken told us that, if he made the statement, it applied only to testimony about the lab's work.

This wasn't the impression, however, of Thelin who complained about the threat to his immediate superior. Result: some 24 hours after Milliken made the remark, he came back to Thelin and rescinded it.

The Senate committee, meanwhile, got wind of the pressure upon Thelin. Two of Ribicoff's aides, Robert Wager and John Koskinen, shuffled off to Buffalo. The incident was quietly straightened out, and the Justice Department was never asked to study whether a federal violation had occurred.

Subsequently, Koskinen and Wager made several trips to Detroit to check into Nader's charges against GM. The two Senate sleuths were supposed to find out whether GM officials lied about Corvair's safety to the courts and the committee.

Chauffeured Gumshoes

We have now learned that Koskinen and Wager, astonishingly, accepted chauffeured limousine service from the people they were investigating. GM dispatched a limousine to pick them up at the airport and to drive them in high style on their investigative rounds.

Even more amazing, the two Ribicoff aides permitted GM's general counsel, Ross Malone, to listen while they interviewed GM employees. No employee who valued his job was likely to divulge any adverse information in the presence of the corporate counsel.

So outraged was one witness that he refused to answer questions while Malone was in the room. Sheepishly, the GM counsel withdrew during the interview.

Commented a committee spokesman: "The practice of the committee is to allow witnesses to have counsel present. GM requested that Ross Malone be present, and we agreed to it." The practice, of course, has been to allow witnesses to have their own counsel present, not an attorney for the party under investigation.

The spokesman added that Koskinen and Wager had interviewed four GM employees in person or on the phone without Malone's monitoring the conversation. "The investigation has been as thorough as possible," said the spokesman.

Footnote: Nader, meanwhile, asked the committee staff for a copy of a confidential memo prepared for Ribicoff by the Library of Congress on whether GM can be compelled to produce documents that the committee desires to see. The staff refused to show Nader the memo but slipped it to General Motors. We have seen a bottlegged copy of the memo, which appears to reject GM's claim that some documents are protected by the client-attorney relationship.

Location of Launching Base Economic Prize for Space Shuttle

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Quietly and outside the limelight, a big battle is shaping up among various states for a huge economic prize: location of the launching base for the space shuttle of the future.

Cape Kennedy, from where man first went to the moon, is the leading contender in the treasure hunt.

But its premier position is being threatened by California and New Mexico. Oklahoma and Utah also are in the running, but are given only the slightest chance to pick the plum.

At stake are billions of dollars, thousands of jobs and a possible economic boom for the area that wins the launching site for the shuttle, the reusable spaceship, scheduled for operation later this decade.

Politicians and lobbyists, backed by hundreds of thousands of dollars, are hard at work in Washington, trying to convince President Nixon and Congress that the space shuttle should be launched from their respective states.

A decision may come later this year.

Cape Kennedy is the leading candidate because the National Aeronautics and Space Administration already has invested $1.5 billion here for land and for launch and support facilities for the Apollo moon program and other projects.

But the shuttle will be a unique craft, and some advantages that favored Cape Kennedy on earlier programs might now work to its disadvantage.

The complex vehicle is being developed to ferry men and supplies between the earth and orbiting space stations. It will be a fully reuseable two-stage craft which will take off vertically.

The booster stage, the size of a Boeing 747 jumbo jet and manned by two pilots, will kick the orbital section into space and then turn around and fly back to the launch site, landing on a runway like an conventional aircraft.

The Boeing 707-sized orbital section, with two pilots and 12 or more passengers and 50,000 pounds of cargo, will continue to the space station. It later will return to earth with equipment and passengers from the space lab. It also will land like a plane.

Both segments of the shuttle will be designed to fly 100 or more times, greatly reducing the cost of operating in space. The pricetag for the Saturn 5 rocket and spaceships for the current Apollo moon launch program is $325 million and none of the hardware is reuseable.

One Cape Kennedy disadvantage for the shuttle is that the launch area is nearly surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean. That made it ideal for the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo programs and unmanned launchings because the no-longer-needed booster rockets were dumped into waters offshore without endangering populated areas.

If either the booster or orbital section of a space shuttle should stray on takeoff or landing, it might land in the ocean's salt water. Recovery would be difficult and the resulting corrosion could render it no longer useable.

The other candidate states, noting this and other Cape weaknesses, began touting their areas many months ago.

California is backing either Edwards Air Force Base or Vandenberg Air Force Base.

New Mexico favors its White Sands Missile Range, and Utah is pushing Wendover Air Force Base on the Utah-Nevada line. Oklahoma has suggested Clinton-Sherman Air Force Base.

Most observers feel Utah and Oklahoma are out of the running and their campaigns have been lukewarm compared with the others.

A 12-man NASA facilities group headed by Robert H. Curtin will make the choice, probably late this year.

"We have looked at dozens of sites," Curtin said. "The objective is to make sure none of the bets is missed."

NASA originally had hoped to begin flight-testing the shuttle in 1974 and to have an operational version ready to support a 12-man space station by 1976, with the station growing to 50 or more men and women by 1980. But Congress has been reluctant to vote heavy funding at a time when the country has more earthly problems. As a result all target dates have slipped at least two years.

By the time four or five operational craft are built, it is estimated that $6 billion to $8 billion will be spent on the project.

Capital Bombing Will Boomerang

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Two things to remember when analyzing the bombing of the United States Capitol:

A bombing can be carried out by one man, or two or three. It is not a sign the antiwar movement as a whole is growing more violent. In this reporter's experience as a guerrilla, in fact, individual acts of extreme violence tend to increase when extremist factions of a movement begin to lose their influence.

Like a losing gambler grown frantic, each weakened splinter group, feeling itself on the downhill skids, attempts to recoup its losses (influence) by ever-greater sensationalism — here interpreted as violence.

As these splinter groups become less influential, they lose what moderate members they have, leaving only a hard core, the idiot fringe.

This bombing was not well-designed to achieve any purpose whatever.

The bombing of a building identified with oppression or cruelty, however unjustified the label, can sometimes be used to stir up a feeling of achievement among some people. The U.S. Senate has no such aura.

Violence of this type is of strategic help to a thoroughly organized, slowly developing underground when the government in power has grown so weak it cannot protect itself. Such bombings then dramatize the fact, frighten many people who would otherwise oppose the underground. It broadcasts that the revolutionaries will be the government of tomorrow and signals that you had better cop out and be prepared to accept their rule or suffer the consequences.

Some analysts hold this was what the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong had in mind when they engineered Tet 1968.

By no stretch of the imagination could this situation be thought to prevail today in the United States.

This type of violence is also recommended by Mao Tse-tung when, in a tactical situation, the underground wants to create a diversion. It is impossible to see such a situation as this in the present bombing of the Capitol.

Guerrilla history is filled with examples which show that bombings aimed solely at attracting publicity for a cause (in this case opposition to the fighting in Laos) — inevitably boomerang and antagonize even most of those sympathetic to the over-all cause.

Wawarsing Zoning

Editor, The Freeman:

Just a word of caution to anyone who, if the proposed zoning ordinance is passed into law, contemplates buying or building in the Town of Wawarsing.

Make sure you buy yourself a nice long tape measure and bring it along when you go to look at your property. You will need it to determine whether your lot width meets with the minimum called for in the ordinance; also make sure the size of your proposed building doesn't encroach on the minimum required yard space you must allow for, i.e., 50 feet in front and rear and 30 feet on each side. If it doesn't and you have to petition the Town Zoning Commission for a variance or whatever, it will cost you $25.

Oh, one more thing, after you pay for your building permit, you had better check on your sanitary disposal system and I quote from page ZO-33, H., — "No person shall undertake to construct any new building or structure in the Town without first meeting the requirements for, the separate disposal of water-borne sewage, domestic or trade wastes in accordance with applicable regulations of the Town, the Ulster County Department of Health and other governmental authorities." So, it's septic tanks first!

This proposed zoning ordinance is full of goodies—they tell you where you may not locate your swimming pools and tennis courts in a residential district (Page ZO-15); where you have to park your yacht or truck over one ton capacity.

And, there's good news for people with eye and ear trouble (Page ZO-15)—"No offensive or objectionable vibration, noise exceeding 50 decibels or glare shall be noticeable at or beyond the property line."

That's enough food for thought at the moment.

Socialist Labor Party

Editor, The Freeman:

Having survived a battle with cancer, the time has arrived to get back into action via the typewriter, so here goes.

According to the latest issue of the WEEKLY PEOPLE, official paper of the Socialist Labor Party, there was a substantial increase in the votes received by SLP candidates in 1970 compared to 1968.

In 1968, Henning Blomen, SLP Presidential candidate, was credited with 52,588 votes from 15 states.

Taking the highest count for any SLP candidate from each state in 1970, the total comes to 107,774 votes. This does not include the write-ins the SLP received in California and Washington.

The number of votes received by the Socialist Labor Party is still small.

However, while it is true that we are living in critical times, many workers as yet are not prepared to accept the revolutionary solution of the SLP.

On the other hand, the Socialist Labor Party conducts its campaigns regularly and with good effect which in time will merit the support of the majority.

Primary Election

Editor, The Freeman:

The Primary election in New York State will be held on September 14 this year instead of June 23, and henceforth its' date may vary from year to year at the whim of the Legislature. The Republicans, who control both the State Senate and the Assembly, forced the measure through the Legislature last Wednesday in the face of strong Democratic and non-partisan opposition from voter organizations across the State.

For the last five years the Primary has been held on the 23rd of June. The reasons the Republican leadership gave for changing the date are as flimsy as they are insulting. The early Primary made campaigns too long and the voters became bored, they said. They also contended that the delay in the Primary was necessary this year in order to complete local reapportionment plans based on the 1970 census figures. But while saying that they knew that reapportionment plans will probably not be completed by September any more than they will by June.

The real reason that the Republican leadership wanted the Primary date changed from June to September is much simpler. The September Primary greatly favors incumbents and entrenched political parties, and makes it more difficult for insurgents and new comers to become well enough known to campaign successfully. The September Primary will give machine politicians more control over politics and government in this state.

The date of the Primary election may not seem very important in this day of high taxes, high prices, and high unemployment, but in a very fundamental way it is just as important as all three. For government makes very basic determinations concerning these vital facets of our lives, and elected political officials control government. And when politicians cease to be responsive to the people that elect them then the basic reasons for government become invalid.

As usual, we the people are the real losers in this game of political manipulation. Because of the short time span between the September Primary and the general election an estimated 60 thousand absentee and military ballots may not be counted. Sixty thousand people may effectively be disenfranchised.

Both Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and State Senator Jay P. Rolison voted to change the Primary date from June to September.

Sojourner Truth

Editor, The Freeman:

There once was a lady, Sojourner Truth,
She lived way beyond her enslaved youth.
She worked for civil rights,
Before the expression gained heights,
That lady named Sojourner Truth.
She lived through a vigorous war,
They called it the Civil, she called it more,
Many a time she would hide,
She lived for members of her race to guide,
She was a hater of war; she hoped there would be no more.

Capital Punishment

Eiditor, The Freeman,

I would like to respond to a recent letter to the Freeman and editorials broadcast over a local raido station defending capital punishment.

The approach to the Bible used by the defenders of capital punishment is to pick out those Bible passages which support their position and ignore the overwhelming number of passages which speak against it.

In the Old Testament, God's judgement on Cain for murdering his brother Abel cannot be ignored; for there the Bible clearly forbids the death penalty. But, furthermore, it cannot be ignored by an objective student of the Bible, that page after page of the Old Testament proclaims God's preference for repentance, redemption and forgiveness, not the severest punishment — the death penalty. And, further, where is the biblical support for imposing on the sixth Commandment ("Thou shalt not kill!") any distinction between "Crime and Punishment"?? There is none. It is supplied only from "outside" by those who seek desperately to support the continued cruelty against man by the death penalty.

In the New Testament, it is curious that no spokesman for capital punishment has been able to wage his argument from the teachings of Jesus, whom after all we confess to our Lord and Master. The reason is obvious— line after line of his teachings rebuke those who seek revenge instead of mercy and who want retribution instead of practice foregiveness. His judgement against vengeance-seekers is hard for the proponents of the death penalty to hear.

Paul too is abused when his Letter to the Romans is used by capital punishment's proof-texters. For in that same letter, Paul writes that love sums up the law's requirements — because love harms no one (Rom. 13:8-10). This theme occurs repeatedly in Paul's correspondence; wheras the theme of Rom. 13:4 does not. The meaning of the love-theme is clear; whereas that of Rom. 13:4 is not. Should that theme which occurs infrequently prevail over that which occurs frequently?? Should one passage whose meaning is vague and implicit (at best) be used to interpret the many passages whose meanings are so lucid and explicit?? The logical answer is obviously negative.

That the clergymen's arguments in support of capital punishment rest upon these violations of canons of reason and textual interpretation is evidence of the desperation of the proponents of the death penalty to find moral justification for their positions. This is a desperation that blinds them from seeing and hearing the teachings of their professed Lord and Teacher, Jesus himself.

Respectfully yours,

Woodstock Zoning

Editor, The Freeman:

A lot of heat was generated at last weeks' Zoning Board of Appeals hearing in Woodstock. The very intent of the zoning law was being challenged.

A developer is pressing for a variance from the law in order to build a large apartment development (124 units) and a large motel (48) units. In addition, he suggested the possibility of building a restaurant to seat 200 to 300 in the commercially zoned part of the property. This vast complex would be constructed in the village on the 20 acre beautiful Woodstock Estates property on Tinker Street.

Much of the architect's description of the property and its population was amazing and unbelievable. He predicted a mere 21 school children living in the entire 124 apartment complex: The proposed sewage facilities seemed totally unclear (in a town already plagued by its sewage problem). And although parking spaces would be provided for 161 resident cars (not including the possible restaurant), we were assured the entrie project would have little effect on Woodstock!

Our town is already facing extreme growth problems. Traffic congestion is so acute in mid-February that one wonders how we will cope in mid-July. Our existing sewage problem can be attested to by a whiff of the tragic Tannery Brook. Our school taxes are already unbearably high; a sudden large population influx would be likely to cause most residents extreme hardship in swiftly rising school taxes.

The County Planning Board has recommended that this project not be permitted. Our zoning laws were adopted to protect Woodstock; we ought not to violate them in order to benefit one developer at the expense of the community.

Very truly yours,
LINDA SWEENEY

Students and Food Stamps

Editor, The Freeman:

I would like to make just one comment on the article in the issue of Wednesday, March 3, in regard to students requesting food stamps. A local welfare official is quoted as saying, "The students are in the poverty class by choice not by circumstance."

I would say that their choice is not poverty but the desire for a higher education and society does very little to help or encourage them in this aim. State colleges and universities that started out as free institutions are charging more and more each year for tuition, making it more and more difficult for our young people to get an education.

It is distinctly to the advantage of society to have a well educated generation coming up to meet the problems that we are turning over to them. So I would suggest that we give them every encouragement instead of sneering at them for "choosing poverty".

Yours sincerely,
MRS. ERDINE ANTONSEN

Three in Close Contention For 1972 Democratic Race

PRINCETON, N. J.—With the nation's first presidential primary just one year away, the Democratic race is wide open with three possible candidates in close contention as the top choice of Democratic voters for the nomination.

In the latest Gallup survey, Sen. Edmund, Muskie of Maine is the choice of 26 per cent to 25 per cent for Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and 21 per cent for Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. The current findings represent a 7-point drop in support for Muskie since a late November survey, a 6-point drop for Kennedy — but a 5-point gain for Humphrey.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota shows gains in the latest survey, with his support having increased from 2 per cent in November to 5 per cent today. Senator McGovern still suffers from the fact that he is relatively unknown to many voters.

Interviewing for the latest survey was conducted February 19-21, shortly following Kennedy's defeat as Majority Whip and Sen. George McGovern's announcement of his candidacy for the presidency. A total of 1571 adults were interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation. This was the question asked:

Here is a list of men who have been mentioned as possible presidential candidates for the Democratic party in 1972. Which ONE would you like to see nominated as the Democratic candidate for president in 1972?

Following are the top choices of Democrats compared with those recorded last November following the congressional elections:

Choices of Democrats

	Latest %	Nov. %
Muskie	26	33
Kennedy	25	31
Humphrey	21	16
McGovern	5	2
Lindsay	5	4
McCarthy	4	6
Others, no preference	14	8
	100%	100%

In the first test following the 1968 presidential election (in February, 1969), Kennedy led Humphrey and Muskie by a wide margin—45 per cent to 21 per cent for Humphrey and 17 per cent for Muskie.

In a survey conducted soon after Chappaquiddick, in the summer of 1969, Kennedy's support fell off sharply while Humphrey and Muskie made corresponding gains.

The three men stayed in close contention until the 1970 congressional elections. Following the congressional elections, support for Humphrey declined and the race was briefly a two-way affair between Kennedy and Muskie. Since November, as shown, Humphrey has picked up support and now vies closely with the other two men.

Independent Vote

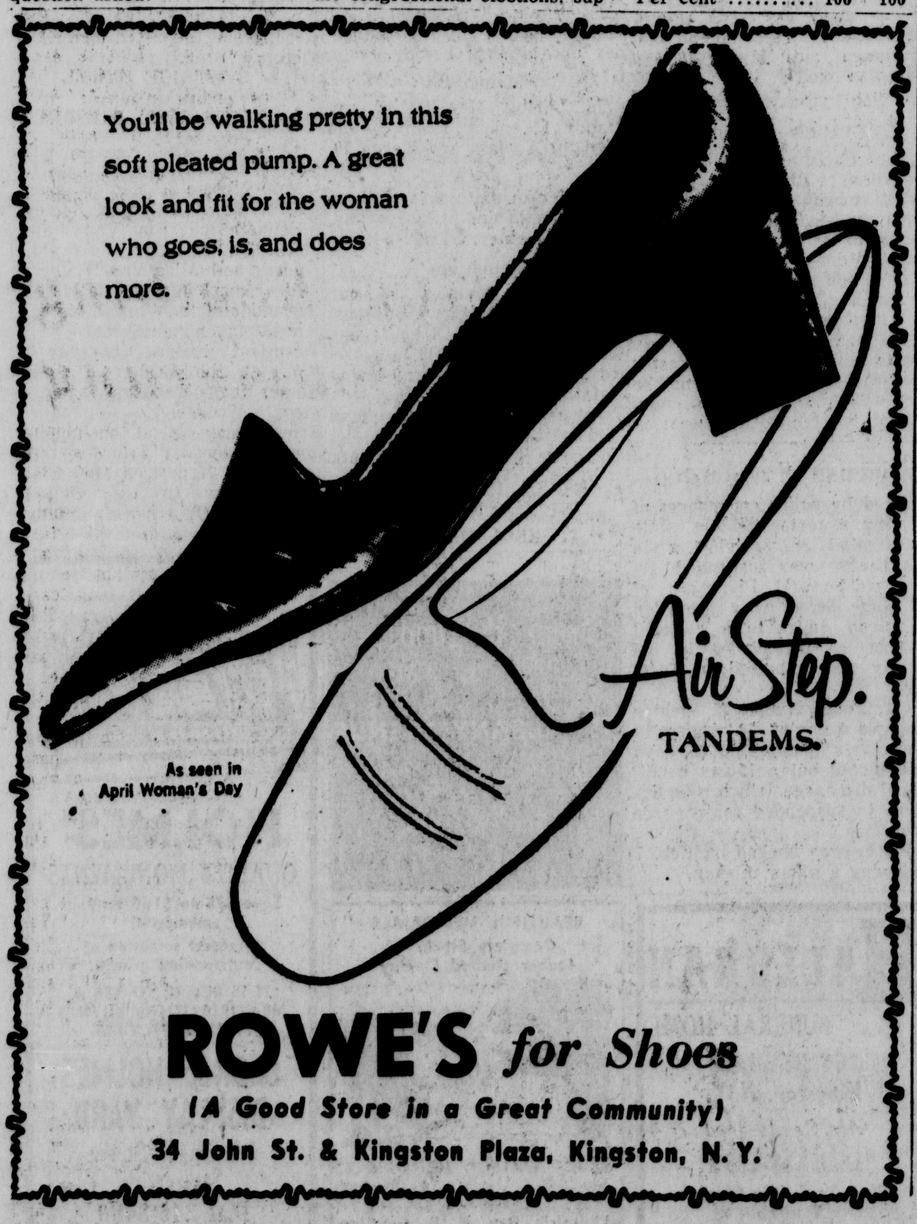

The views of Democrats are obviously of key importance, since this survey approximates a national preference primary. However, the views of Independents should be considered, since their vote can be decisive.

Muskie easily tops the list of choices of Independents, receiving more than twice the votes given the next man, Senator Kennedy. Lindsay is now in third place, having moved ahead of Humphrey since November among Independents. McGovern has registered gains among Independents as well as among Democrats.

Here are the latest results and comparison with November:

Choices of Independents

	Latest %	Nov. %
Muskie	31	33
Kennedy	13	16
Lindsay	11	8
Humphrey	8	12
McCarthy	9	8
McGovern	7	1
Others, no preference	21	22
Per cent	100	100

Consideration for Smaller Cities Discussed at Albany Meeting

ALBANY — Kingston City officials and others attending the New York State Association of Renewal and Housing's First Annual Albany Day Tuesday urged that in the future more consideration be given to the interests of cities or municipalities of under 100,000 or 50,000 population.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig who with Alexander Yosman of the Kingston Housing Authority and Ralph Marallo, of the Urban Renewal Agency, attended the meeting, said that the association tended to concentrate its talk on the concerns of the larger cities. Tuesday's request for consideration of smaller cities was noted by the association.

Yosman, vice president of the executive committee of the association, presided at the meeting at which State Sen. H. Douglas Barclay, spoke of a Community Development Article being proposed to broaden the scope of a 1938 article. It is intended to give greater flexibility to the following areas: Development of adequate and sanitary houses and other buildings; urban and community renewal; economic prosperity and adequate employment opportuntiies; health, mental health and environmental health; child care and aged care; transportation and communication; civic, cultural, recreational and other community facilities and services. Also any combination of such purposes.

Funding of such proposals could be accomplished through a $4 billion bond issue which would have to go to a public referendum.

Youth Injured On Snowmobile

WOODSTOCK — An 18-year-old youth was injured at about 3 p.m. Tuesday while operating a snowmobile on his property on Hutch Hill Road, Shady, according to town police.

Officer Alan Van Wagenen said Benson Lapo was riding a snowmobile when his head came in contact with a large branch of a tree. The youth was thrown from the vehicle.

Police reported Lapo was removed to Benedictine Hospital in Kingston by ambulance. The extent of his injuries was not reported.

Sullivan Board Ripped By Delaware Magistrate

MONTICELLO — Suggesting that the Town of Delaware secede from Sullivan County, an angry Delaware magistrate attacked the Sullivan County Board of Supervisors Monday for "bullheadedness and stupidity."

Democrat William E. Shultz, in a letter to the board, took issue with convention hall proposals and the county airport the Board of Supervisors are so great, why then are you so reluctant to place them out for referendum vote?"

Schultz explained that he lives in the Town of Delaware, a small town with a small vote in county policy, saying, "If the three big towns of Liberty, Thompson and Fallsburg insist on running things the way they please with complete disregard for the small man, I would suggest that you allow the Town of Delaware to secede from the county."

Of the proposed convention hall, Schultz wrote, "I do not understand how any supposedly intelligent body of men can think so stupidly." He was making reference to the killing of bids on the hall which came in too high and the subsequent revival of the issue.

Schultz urged consideration a fiasco, he suggested industry invest in it "if needed."

Calling the convention hall be given to a new hospital and county offices instead.

Of the airport he said, "This facility will stand forever as a tribute to the bullheadedness and stupidity of the Board of Supervisors. It wasn't needed in this county; it can't pay for itself; and now I understand that we the taxpayers are go- run it. . ."

Extra Day Added to Kingston School Schedule

KINGSTON — Superintendent of Kingston City Schools, Louis A. Salzmann, today announced that because of severe weather conditions during this past winter, the district exceeded the number of days available to close schools because of poor weather conditions by one day.

Unless we make up this day and any additional days which may occur between now and the end of the school year, we will lose a substantial amount of state aid. Therefore, it will be necessary to make up an additional day of school," he added.

It has been decided that public schools in the Kingston Consolidated District will be in session Thursday, April 8. All school buses will make their usual daily runs. School lunches will be served, Superintendent Salzmann added.

APICS to Meet

POUGHKEEPSIE — The American Production and Inventory Control Society, Mid-Hudson Valley Chapter, will hold its March meeting tonight. The program will be a plant tour of the Schatz Manufacturing Company, conducted by Joseph Goth. Following the tour a discussion will be held.

The Schatz Manufacturing Company, who will host the tour, is located at Fairview Avenue, Poughkeepsie. Before the tour a dinner will be held at Aloy's Garden Restaurant, 155 Garden Street. Social hour will start promptly at 6:30 p.m. and serving of the dinner is planned for 7:15 p.m.

Tuberculosis Scare Among Albany Firemen

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Chest X-rays have been ordered for all personnel of the Albany Fire Department following disclosure of what a State Health Department spokesman describes as "a high rate" of tuberculosis.

Three men assigned to one firehouse have contracted TB since 1966. A fourth man, also assigned to the unit, Ladder 3, was hospitalized with the disease shortly after resigning from the department in 1966.

Dr. John J. A. Lyons, Albany County Health Commissioner, ordered the chest X-rays Tuesday. The order came after Martin Ippolito was taken to St. Peter's Hospital Saturday where the illness was diagnosed. He has since been transferred to the tuberculosis ward of the Albany Veterans Administration Hospital.

Dr. Julius Katz, director of tuberculosis control for the State Health Department, said he would consider "three or four" cases in a relatively short period of time to be "a high rate of frequency" for the disease, which is transmitted by personal contact.

Police Cite Three Drivers

KINGSTON — Three motorists were arrested overnight in unrelated cases on charges of driving motor vehicles while intoxicated, according to area authorities.

William J. Pearson, 33, of 162 Highland Street, Worcester, Mass., formerly of Kingston, was cited by Kingston police early today. He also was booked for unlicensed operation of a motor vehiclie.

City police also arrested Edward J. Baniewski, 39, of 184 Hurley Avenue for drunken driving. Both men were scheduled to appear before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

Meanwhile, Kingston state police arrested Richard Hickey Jr., 36, of Morgan Hill Road, Kingston, charged with driving while intoxicated. He was picked up by Trooper W. T. Wilson at 9:30 p.m. on Route 28. Arraigned before Kingston Town Justice Robert E. Ferrigan, Hickey received an adjournment until March 17 and bail was fixed at $100.

Services Canceled

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Church evangelistic series scheduled this week has been canceled due to death and illness in the family of the Rev. Richard Jenks who was to have started the services last night.

The Rev. Mr. Jenks will be in Kingston for Sunday services 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. The Rev. George Osborne, host pastor said that the series will not be rescheduled. The public may attend the Sunday sessions.

License Suspended

Cited by police on charges of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated and driving while his license was suspended, 22-year-old Sam. H. Pierce Jr., of 57 Gage Street was permitted to plead guilty to a reduced charge of driving while his ability was impaired on Tuesday.

City Judge Hubert A. Richter imposed a fine of $50, suspended the man's license for 60 days and meted out a 15-day conditional discharge, which is equivalent to suspended sentence or probation.

Pierce was booked on Feb. 7 following a minor mishap.

Local Death Record

Albert (Butch) Pinkerous

Albert (Butch) Pinkerous, 28, of 23 Brooklake Road, R.D., Florham Park, N. J., died on Monday at the Overlook Hospital in Summit, N. J. He was born in Union, N. J., on June 22, 1942, the son of Stanley and the late Ruby Bolling Pinkerous and was married in Ellenville on February 23, 1965 to the former Eletta Spadaro. He was a production manager for the Drake Bakery, Brooklyn, N. Y., and a member of St. Mary's-St. Andrew's Church, Ellenville. RIOT AFTERMATH — Riot policemen stand amidst the debris after they broke up a riot between leftwing and rightwing extremists at the Paris Sports Palace late Tuesday when some 700 militants in a rightist movement tried to hold a meeting. Police broke up the battle after about half-an-hour of wild street battles that involved medieval-like lances, water jets, Molotov cocktails and tear gas. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

Informational Meet for Area Educators

ROSENDALE — An informational meeting between officials of Ulster County Community College and 50 local school superintendents and guidance counselors was held in Rosendale Tuesday.

Welcomed by college President Dr. George B. Erbstein, the group was called together to get advice from the superintendents and counselors on existing and proposed programs for the college and for the purpose of finding out if the schools could be of more assistance to each other.

Dean of the Faculty Robert J. Markes said UCCC was thinking of offering a Landscape Development Program which would prepare students for work in greenhouses, garden centers, on golf courses and in industry. It is also contemplating a two-year program of land surveying and environmental quality studies program.

Markes concluded saying the college is in the process of evaluating its program to determine and meet the needs of the citizens of Ulster County.

2 Saugerties Men Arrested Following High Speed Chase

SAUGERTIES — Alertness of two Saugerties Village police officers early today resulted in the apprehension of two men after a high speed chase and the solution to a burglary at a West Hurley general store before the break-in was reported to authorities.

Police Chief Gordon Keeley highly commended Officers Charles Winters and Marvin Osborne for the arrests of Antony Refregier, 27, of 172 Partition Street, and 22-year-old Robert G. Miller of 110 Partition Street.

Refregier and Miller were later accused of burglarizing Mason's General Store on Route 375 in West Hurley early this morning. The break-in is under investigation by Chief Investigator Harold T. Bowers and other officers from the sheriff's department.

The two accused men were arraigned before Town Justice Calvin H. Cody on charges of third degree burglary. They were committed to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $2,000 bail each pending a preliminary hearing on March 17.

Chief Keeley reported that Officer Winters was on patrol in the village shortly before 2:30 a.m. when he spotted a car traveling at a high speed. Winters picked up Officer Osborne who was on patrol nearby, and the two patrolmen pursued the speeding at at high speeds through the village streets.

Subsequently, the car was overtaken and Refregier and Miller were apprehended and taken to police headquarters where they were held on charges of public intoxication. The arresting patrolman noticed money protruding from the pockets of the pair.

Search of their vehicle disclosed a cash box and a large sum of money and merchandise, including a stereo, bacon, flashlights, packs of beer, stamps and cigarettes.

Area authorities were immediately notified and later it was determined the loot and cash had been taken from Mason's store during a break-in.

Chief Keeley said the merchandise and $302.53 was recovered.

The chief commended Winters and Osborne for their quick action and timely apprehension of the two defendants.

Pledges Support

A reply has been received to a letter sent by the board of directors of the Ulster County Mental Association for Mental Health to Dr. Alan D. Miller, commissioner of the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene. The letter concerned the urgent need for a residential facility for the elderly ill in Ulster County who remain at Middletown State Hospital only because of lack of other provision.

The reply was received from Dr. Amore Del Giudice, director of Middletown State Hospital. He thanked the board for their interest in the matter, and pledged his support and aid in furthering the program.

Leslie Talks: Liked Manson, Not Sexually

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—One of Charles Manson's women finally has said something unflattering about the convicted ringmaster of the Tate-LaBianca murders—she doesn't find him sexually attractive.

A psychiatrist testified at the penalty phase of the trial Tuesday that defendant Leslie Van Houten told him that while she admired Manson she did not feel sexual emotion for him.

"She said that he was too short," Dr. Joel Hochman told the jury. "He turned her off sexually."

Miss Van Houten and two other female followers have taken the witness stand to absolve Manson of any guilt in the seven slayings. The jury is hearing testimony to determine whether all four should get the death penalty and Hochman detailed his examination of Miss Van Houten.

She had admitted the stabbing death of Mrs. Leno LaBianca.

Hochman was asked what she told him about her emotions after the killing.

"She said, 'You know, I didn't feel any hatred for that woman. A shark doesn't feel any hatred when it kills a fish. It was like I was an animal'" the psychiatrist testified.

Troopers Probe Ulster Burglary

TOWN OF ULSTER — A burglary at the Fashion Town store on Route 9W (North) was under investigation today by Kingston State Police BCI officers. It was reported the establishment had been entered through a rear window after the protective bars had been removed.

Details of the break-in were incomplete. An inventory is being made to determine the amount of loot taken, if any.

Office Building Bursting at Seams...But

Sometimes Room for Other Agenies

KINGSTON — Even though a recently completed study of available office space in the Ulster County Office Building shows that the facility is bursting at the seams, the county does open wide its doors to outsde agencies who wish to sometimes use vacant rooms when they are available.

Each month, the State Department of Motor Vehicles holds hearings in the fifth floor legislative chambers as does the National Labor Relations Board and the Workmen's Compensation Department. Sales tax hearings too, are conducted in the building for the convenience of the agencies as well as the public.

The county is able to accomodate the outside agencies whenever the legislative chambers or other small offices are not in use.

In the case of the Workmen's Compensation Department, the agency uses the facility about four days a month and averages a caseload of 48 per day. Motor vehicle hearings and NLRB hearings usually consume up to a week of time each month.

"It's a courtesy to the public, giving free space," according to Frank Fabbie, deputy clerk of the County Legislature.

The Workmen's Compensation Department covers residents living within a 30-mile radius according to State Referee Joseph Malone, who is also an attorney. "We want to see that the working man gets taken care of," he explained, adding that compensation depends on the employes salary but usually amounts to two-thirds of his wages but not more than $85 a week. If a person claims disability, examination is made by the state medical examiner or insurance company physician.

Motor Vehicle hearings are held with a referee from the Department of Motor Vehicles designated by the state commissioner to conduct hearings for drivers, dealers and operators of garages with motor vehicle inspection stations.

Accidents of $200 or more that must be reported to the Motor Vehicle Department which determines whether or not a hearing is to be conducted.

"The operation is aimed not at punishing persons but promoting safety on the high ways," according to the referee.

Among determinations made are whether licenses should be revoked or suspended, whether or not inspection stations fail to comply with state regulations and such things as misuse of junior operator licenses, and disposition of cases in which persons charged with driving while intoxicated fail to take sobriety tests. One-car accident hearings are also conducted.

Sales tax hearings are conducted for business men and NLRB hearings pertain to labor problems arising in the Mid-Hudson area.

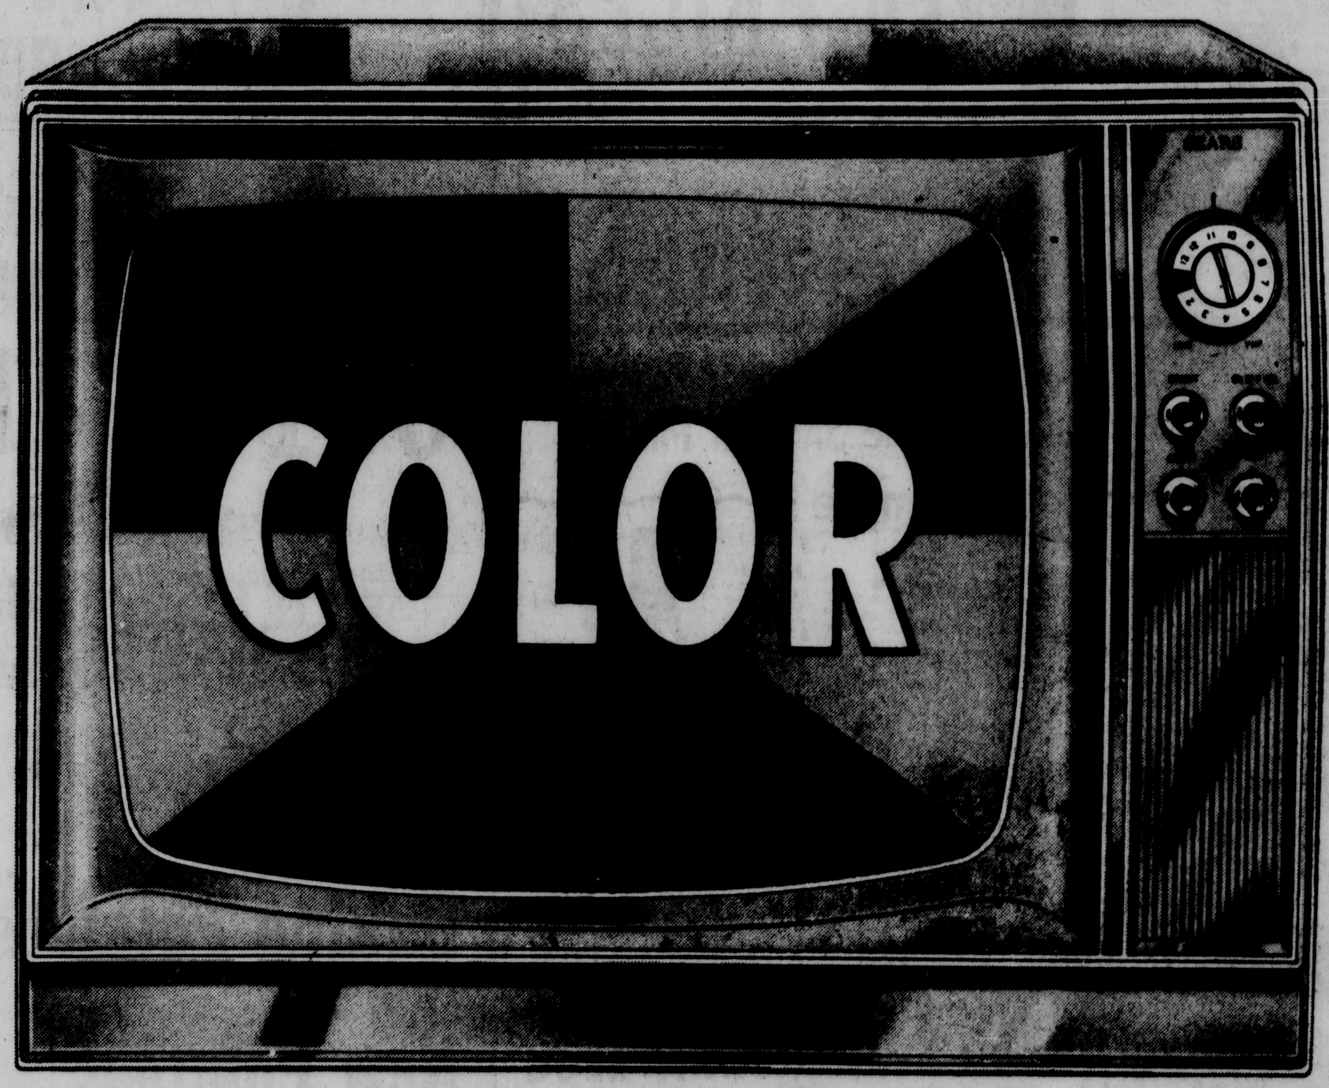

Qualified court reporters are in attendance at each hearing and persons involved in the proceedings are frequently represented by counsel.

LWV Delegates Attending Albany Legislative Parley

WOODSTOCK — Thirteen members of Woodstock League of Women Voters are in Albany today attending the 33rd annual legislative conference of the League.

Those attending are Mrs. W. Jack Kahn, president; Mrs. Antoinette Tennant, Mrs. William Malloy, Mrs. John Shallenberger, Mrs. Paul Basset, Mrs. Ned Buoymaster, Mrs. Peggy I. Cole, Mrs. C. W. Day, Mrs. Rose Downie, Mrs. Christopher Evers, Mrs. Lloyd Luders, Mrs. Patrick Moran and Mrs. Carl Grant. They are among more than 300 women from all parts of the state lobbying in the State Legislature for the League's 1971 program. They are planning to meet with Ulster County Assemblyman H. Clark Bell at his Albany office.

Special attention will be given to the need for a statewide judicial budget to finance the state's courts.

Today the delegates will hear a panel discussion of the state's responsibility for public welfare. The LWV has recently completed an intensive national study of welfare and will support efforts for reform.

Bus Transportation Requests Are Sought

BOICEVILLE — Parents residing in the Onteora Central School District desiring special transportation for a child to attend a non-public school outside of the Onteora Central School District during the 1971-72 school year must file a written request for such service with the Board of Education on or before April 1.

Each request must contain the pupil's name, address, grade and school presently attending, and the name and address of the school to be attended during 1971-72.

This procedure is in accordance with the State Education Law and is required so that the Board of Education may budget the required funds to cover the costs of this service.

Requests should be addressed to Watson Goodrich, assistant superintendent for general administration, Onteora Central Schools, Boiceville, 12412.

Transportation provided by the Onteora School District for students attending non-public schools outside of the school district is authorized only for those students residing within 10 miles of the school that they plan to attend. No transportation outside of the district may be provided beyond the 10 mile limit.

Kings Knight Chess Men Defeat Kitchewan Club

WOODSTOCK — Kings Knight Chess Club of Woodstock defeated the IBM Kitchewan Chess Club 4-1 in the first of a home and home series for the Hudson Valley League Championship.

The Northern Division champions and the Southern Division champions played the match Sunday at Kitchewan. Woodstock now needs only 1½ points out of 5 in the next match at Woodstock to retain the Hudson Valley League Championship.

The individual results follow: Getti Sveikauskas drew on Board 1; John Meyer and Eugene Meyer won on Boards 2 and 3; Goren Zalar drew on Board 4, and Robert Wilder won on Board 5. Thus the Woodstock team suffered no outright loss, its one point down being composed of the ½ points on the draws.

Jaycees Outline July 4th Plans

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties Jaycees headed by President John Lawrence have been actively working to form one of the biggest and best Fourth of July Celebrations Saugerties has ever seen.

This year the celebration will run two days and will be packed with fun and entertainment for the whole family, he said.

Parade chairman Richard Marconi, has been contacting bands and marching groups to insure that the parade is the best one yet. Anyone who is interested in participating in this year's parade, please contact Marconi.

Field Day chairman Robert Saturn has been lining up some outstanding acts, and promises that this year will be packed full of fun for the whole family. Any information concerning Field Day should be directed to Saturn.

Other Chairmen are: Frank Orlando, general chairman; Richard Lukes, concessions; William Warner, finance; Richard Aguanno, sound and power; Rodger Murray, director; Robert Curry, publicity; Michael Flynn, concessions, and Joseph Ryan, ticket sales.

One of the most important early functions, is to ask local merchants and businessmen for donations to support this annual event. The donation campaign has been under way for two weeks, and public recognition should be given to the local businesses and civic organizations for their generous support of the July Fourth celebration.

Their thoughtful support will help to make this annual event a successful one. The fund raising campaign is progressing well, but additional assistance is needed. This year's celebration is going to be the largest yet to be seen in Saugerties. As a result, the budget has become the largest ever handled for this event.

Loyalty Day Fund Raising

SAUGERTIES

The Loyalty Day Committee of Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, Veterans of Foreign Wars Monday night finalized plans for future events in connection with Loyalty Day.

It was announced that the music for the March 27 dance will be provided by the Nick Ferraro band. The dance starts at 9 p.m. and ends about 1 a.m. Included in the admission price is a buffet and refreshments.

Members who have special promotion tickets should make returns to Alice Benson or Jan Dengler.

Members of the Loyalty Day Committee will soon start making the rounds of local businessmen, seeking financial support of Loyalty Day. Any help that can be given to support this very worthy cause would be gratefully appreciated.

The next meeting of the Loyalty Day Committee will be Monday, March 22 at 7:30 p.m.

GOP Names Committees

SAUGERTIES

Standing committees for the coming year were named at the recent Town of Saugerties Republican Club meeting held at Milt's Restaurant, West Camp, Election District No. 7.

They include:

Program chairman, Freeman Lasher, Donald McCaig; membership, Joseph Mayone, Jack Bartells, Joseph Bruno, Frank Mignone, and George Turner; ways and means, Eugene Davis, Horace Emerick, and Joseph Fabiano; publicity, Shirley Breitenbach, Walter Johnson, Charles Scala, and Frank Short.

President Henry Breitenbach welcomed Frank Mignone and Charles Ascarinc as new members.

Program chairman Lasher introduced the Republican County Legislators Clifford Snyder, and Charles Scala, and Republican Town Councilman, George Turner, Bernard M. Rinaldi and Frank Hallion.

On the town level, Councilman Turner reported on the accomplishments of the Town Board an area of concern. He noted that the landfill operation is recognized by Ulster County authorities as one of the best kept landfills in the county.

Turner also mentioned that a draft of the proposed building code will be reviewed by a committee of representatives of the Planning Board, Town Board, and Builders Association very shortly. It is expected that the Planning Board will be able to conduct a public hearing on the Building Code within the next 60 days.

A final note of interest was the progress on interim zoning for the town. The Planning Board held a well attended public meeting on Feb. 17 for the purpose of enlisting help from town residents. An Advisory Committee will be established to assist the Planning Board.

Councilman Rinaldi reported on the field of recreation and the Glasco Water District, his two areas of responsibility.

Recreation has come a long way in the past three years. Cantine Field at one time the only facility in the town, now has the company of three more, with a fourth to be developed this year, he observed.

Veteran Memorial Field adjacent (26 acres) to Cantine Field already has a Little League field and other improvements are planned and budgeted for this year.

A basketball court and other improvements will be made at the Mt. Marion Park this year.

The newly acquired Camp Fire Girl's property in Centerville will begin to be developed during the coming year. Three years ago he appointed a Recreation Commission. George Leombroune serves as chairman, and other members include: Peter Kramer, Gerry Kurtz, Wilson Edmunds, Ted Corea, John Smith, Joseph Benjamin, and Frank Antalek. These men coordinated the program along with Councilman Rinaldi.

Breitenbach reminded members that the March 18 meeting will be held at the Mt. Marion Inn, Election District 10.

Appeared On Panel

Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, Superintendent of Schools in Saugerties, while attending the annual conference of the American Association of School Administrators at Atlantic City during the last week in February, participated in a television program, a panel discussion, and was a platform guest.

A member of AASA since 1948, Dr. Arnold has served as a member of the Resolutions Committee and is presently one of three Advisory Council members representing New York State administrators.

Boy Scouts Membership Drive

SAUGERTIES

First District County Legislator Clifford W. Snyder was recently named chairman of Saugerties Boy Scouts sustaining membership campaign for 1971, it was announced by Israel Slutsky of Hunter, general chairman of Rip Van Winkle Council sustaining membership enrollment for the Northern area.

Snyder will announce the key men who will join him in conducting the local enrollment. Snyder said more than 500 boys are being served by the Scouting program in the Saugerties area and that new unit organization will begin soon so that even more boys may become a part of America's greatest youth program.

Snyder stressed that additional volunteer leaders are needed to provide adequate leadership for the activities of the Rip Van Winkle Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Snyder is also active in many other civic and community service programs such as the Glasco Fire Company; Ulster Lodge F&AM; American Legion Lamouree-Hackett Post No. 72; VFW Saugerties Memorial Post, No. 5034; High Woods Sports man's Club; chairman of the Sheriff's Committee of the County Legislature. Snyder was also chairman of the very successful 1970 Heart Fund Campaign of Saugerties.

Snyder is employed as a manager in the Programming Systems Computer Operations of IBM. He and his wife Florence and children Jeanne 16, and Clifford Jr. age 15 reside at 11 Edith Avenue in Saugerties.

CLIFFORD W. SNYDER

Citizen's Advisory Committee On Zoning Will Meet March 16

SAUGERTIES

The Citizen's Advisory Committee will meet with members of Saugerties Town Planning Board Tuesday, March 16, 7:30 p.m. at Saugerties United Methodist Church, Washington Avenue and Post Street.

The Advisory Committee is composed of 15 to 20 persons of the community representing various areas of the business and organizational groups of the Saugerties township. Irving Oltman, chairman of the Planning Board, and Manuel S. Emanuel, technical advisor on planning and procedure, will discuss the various areas to be studied in the Town of Saugerties to lay the base for planning utilities, sewerage, adequate water supply, commercial sites, recreation areas, and residential housing for the community.

The necessity for community planning is heightened by the population increase expected in the Hudson Valley in the next 10 to 15 years. Adequate planning by citizens of the community will help to guide the pattern of development of the Saugerties area into a well-rounded, balanced community of residential housing, recreational sites, churches and industrial opportunities.

Interested persons of the community are welcome to attend the meeting and share their ideas and concepts.

Rebekahs to Honor Noble Grands

SAUGERTIES

Plans to honor past noble grands were outlined at the recent meeting of Queen Ulster Rebekah Lodge No. 34 held in Odd Fellows Temple.

A donation was made to the Educational Foundation Fund. There will be a rehearsal of the degree team on Thursday at 7:3 p. m. All members are requested to make a special effort to be present. Alice Legg was elected as the regular delegate and Anna Minkler the proxy delegate to the Assembly Session to be held at Niagara Falls in May.

At the meeting to be held March 16, the Past Noble Grands will be honored, secret pals will be revealed and the anniversary of the birth of Schuyler Colfax, founder of the Rebekah Degree will be observed.

A framed copy of the song "Bless This Lodge" was presented to the lodge by Alice Legg. The members are reminded to please send in their President's Project envelopes not later than March 16.

Letters from Daphne Kenealy, president IARA and Samuel J. Patters on, sovereign grand master, were read. Noble Grand Florence Tompkins appointed the following committees: Refreshments, Marie Gunderson and Dorothy Imhoff; visiting, Sarah Mack, EEthel Clum, Vice Grand and Noble Grand.

SGT. RICHARD F. QUINN

Posthumous Award For Woodstock GI

Army Sgt. Richard F. Quinn, killed in Vietnam on July 12, 1970, has been awarded (posthumously) the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award for heroism in combat.

The medal was presented to the late serviceman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Quinn of 16 Patricia Lane, Woodstock, last month.

The citation accompanying the award reads as follows:

"For the extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations involving conflict with an armed hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam: Sgt. Quinn distinguished himself while serving as a medical aidman during ground combat operations in Phuoc Long Province.

"Sgt. Quinn's company had just departed its night defensive position and was advancing down a narrow jungle trail when the Allied lead element contacted an enemy force of unknown size.

"Several Allied casualties were sustained in the initial fighting and Sgt. Quinn immediately moved forward to treat the casualities. Ignoring the intense enemy fire that swept the area, he moved from one position to another to treat the wounded Allies and assist them to positions of relative safety.

"When a series of incoming enemy rockets exploded to Sgt. Quinn's front, he immediately went to the aid of two seriously wounded soldiers. Although exposed in a forward position, the sergeant skillfully administered aid to his comrades.

"As he prepared to evacuate them to rear positions he was mortally wounded by the hostile fire.

"Sgt. Quinn's extraordinary heroism and devotion, at the cost of his life, were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army."

The citation is signed by Major General Charles M. Gettys, chief of staff.

Sgt. Quinn, who was 22 years old at the time of his death, was a graduate of Onteora High School and Ulster County Community College. He was attending the University of Miami when called into the service.

He took basic training at Fort Dix, N.J. and medical training at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

The Sergeant also holds the Bronze Star Medal, the Combat Medic's Badge, the Purple Heart, the Air Medal and the Good Conduct Medal.

His father fought with the ski troops in Italy in World War II and earned the Silver Star and the Bronze Star.

In addition to his father, Sgt. Quinn is survived by his mother, Hilda, a sister Sue, and a brother, George.

New APPEAL the mouth conditioner invites you to a GRAND OPENING:

Your mouth.

You use Appeal like a toothpaste.

But it's different from everything you've brushed with most of your life.

Appeal is a clear concentrate.

It contains an exclusive cleaner and brightener not available in any leading toothpaste.

It contains the breath fresheners of a famous mouthwash.

It has a different-from-toothpaste texture; regular brushing with Appeal helps keep gums healthier.

It's softening teeth. Freshening breath. Keeping gums healthier.

That's what regular brushing with a mouth conditioner is meant to do.

That's how new Appeal can make your mouth a Grand Opening—without ever buying special products like mouthwash again.

Now... aren't you glad you bought a newspaper today?

In the toothpaste section of your favorite store. Because they don't have a mouth conditioner section—yet.

EYEGLASS COLLECTION — Town of Ulster Lions Club through the cooperation of Ulster merchants is collecting used eyeglasses. Collection boxes have been installed at Wallaces, Montgomery Wards and Caldors. The eyeglasses collected are sent to New Eyes for the Needy Inc., in New Jersey, a non-profit volunteer organization which provides better vision for the poor. More than a half million have been helped by the program. Installing a box at Wallaces are (L-R) Morton Zelikofsky, manager of Wallaces; Joseph F. Policano and Rober Merz, co-chairmen of the Ulster Lions Sight Conservation Committee. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Several From the County Unit Going to Buffalo Cancer Kickoff

KINGSTON — Representing the Ulster County Unit, American Cancer Society, at the New York State Division's Crusade Kickoff in Buffalo, March 26, will be Dr. Harri H. Janssen, unit president; Mrs. Ashton W. Hart, New Paltz, Ulster County's public education chairman; Mrs. Francis H. Delaney, Kingston; Michael Pagliaro, Crusade chairman for Kingston; Mrs. Frank L. Casciaro, co-chairman for the city Crusade; Frederick P. Carpenter, treasurer for the local unit; Mrs. Paul J. Wendrow, executive director and Miss Carol Melnik, Ulster County's Miss Hope—1971.

Heading the list of stars who will launch the 1971 Cancer Crusade are Marguerite Piazza, national Crusade chairman, and Gordon MacRae, honorary Crusade chairman, State division, American Cancer Society.

A panel of judges will interview and select Miss Hope—1971 for New York State from candidates representing the nursing profession from all parts of the state.

Additional guest will be Miss Marilyn Edgeley, 1971 Miss Hope from the Canadian Cancer Society, and Miss Catherine Hiler, State Division's Miss Hope—1970.

Presenting the cancer research picture today will be Ronald G. Vincent, MD, acting chief, Department of Thoracic Surgery, Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo. At the banquet, Dr. George H. Shields, president of the State Division, will present Gordon MacRae with the outstanding Crusade Volunteer of the Year Award.

Paltz College Program on Study in Russia

NEW PALTZ — A five-week study program in Russia will be sponsored by the State University College, New Paltz, this summer, according to Dr. Pierre Francois, director of International Studies at the college.

The course will not be limited to students at the college. According to Francois, anyone willing to take an intensive eight-week course in Russian at the college from June 15 to Aug. 10 will be eligible to join the foreign study group. The course is the equivalent of one year of college level Russian.

Satisfactory completion of the Russian course earns nine or 10 credits, Francois said.

The program in Russia, from Aug. 11 to Sept. 13, will include language seminars at Dyuny and Sochi, and tours of Kiev, Lenningrad, Moscow, Valdimir, and Suzdal. Six college credits are given for satisfactory completion of this program.

The college is sponsoring five other foreign studies programs in Nigeria, Italy, France, Spain, and Germany.

Pays $50 Fine On Guilty Plea

TOWN OF ESOPUS — A 19-year-old youth was arrested Monday by Deputy Sheriff Clark Johnson on a charge of petit larceny involving the alleged theft of articles from a car parked on the property of the Ulster County Community College.

Walter Read of Marl Road, Walker Valley, was accused by John Cartwright of 50 Prospect Street, Saugerties, of taking a speaker and six tapes from the complainant's vehicle.

Read pleaded guilty before Town Justice Charles Montafia. He was fined $50 or 15 days in the County jail. He paid the fine, police said.

Lions Schedule Glaucoma Clinic In Modena

PLATTEKILL — Plattekill Lions Club will hold a free glaucoma clinic Saturday, April 17 from 3 to 5 p. m. at the Modena United Methodist Church Memorial Hall, Rt. 44-45, Modena, according to Chairman Fred Fowler.

"Everyone over 40 years of age owes it to themselves and their families to take this simple precaution to preserve the future of their eyesight," he said.

The clinic will be served by Dr. Maxwell H. Mund of Poughkeepsie and a staff of registered nurses.

"Everyone is welcome, a free invitation is extended to all." Fowler said, adding, "The test is very simple, quick and absolutely painless. The results, one way or the other, are a terrific dividend for the few minutes invested."

Joseph Kissel is in charge of the visual aid program. Other members in charge of various duties include William Gilmour, nurses; Joseph Sinagra, refreshments and Ony Orlowski, publicity.

Gillon's Book Of Haiku Poetry Is Published

NEW PALTZ

A book of Haiku poetry, written by Dr. Adam Gillon of the Department of English and World Literature of State University College, New Paltz, was recently published. The book, "In the Manner of Haiku: Seven Aspects of Man," is a revision, with 18 new poems added.

Japanese Haiku consits of 17 syllables arranged in three lines, and usually follows the theme of nature and the seasons.

Gillon has used this theme to interpret human behavior and modern life.

Gillon has published a number of literary and critical works, and has received an award from the Alfred Jurzy Kowski Foundation for his work as a Polish translator and his significant contribution to the cause of Polish culture.

NAACP Makes Plans for Dinner-Dance

KINGSTON

The Ulster County NAACP met at the New Central Baptist Church on the Strand Monday night and discussed plans for dinner dance this spring and a workshop in Connecticut next month.

Everett Hodge, president of the organization, is expected to be one of the delegates to the workshop in Connecticut on April 25.

Members of the dinner dance committee include Mrs. Elizabeth Royal, William Jones, Emma Gordon and Hydrect Armstrong.

It was also announced by Mrs. Annie Jackson that Golden Circle No. 52 of the Order of Eastern Star will meet at 7:30 p. m. on Thursday at the Lodge Hall on 32 Cedar Street.

Mrs. Jackson also announced that the Martin Luther King Senior Citizens Club would meet at the Rondout Service Center, 13 Broadway at 3 p. m. today.

Garage Foreman Exam Listed

KINGSTON

An open competitive examination for a garage foreman for the Ulster County Highway Department has been announced by the Ulster County Civil Service Commission.

Applications must be sumitted by March 19 to the Commission, UPO Box 172, County Office Building, Kingston. The examination date has been set for April 24.

Candidates must have been legal residents of Ulster County for at least four months immediately preceding the date of the written test and must have had four years of experience as a skilled automotive mechanic, two years of which shall have involved repair and maintenance of heavy automotive equipment.

The written examination will test for knowledge and skills or abilities in maintenance and repair of automotive equipment, tools and terminology used in automotive repair and supervision.

At present there is one vacancy in the Highway Department at a starting salary of $3 an hour.

Applications Are Ready For Program

KINGSTON

Applications for cost sharing in the 1971 Rural Environment Assistance Program are now being accepted by the Ulster County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, it was announced recently.

Among the objectives of the program are to prevent or abate agriculture related water pollution for community benefit; a significant reduction in the loss of agricultural soil, water, woodland and wildlife resources; to encourage enduring conservation practices and to achieve annually established goals, objectives and priorities in a manner consistent with community and national needs for the present and the future.

Those interested in signing up for the program should contact the Ulster County ASCS office at 54 John Street.

Request From RVC Teachers

KYSERIKE

The Rondout Valley Teachers Association has asked that a section of the high school library be set aside in honor and memory of the school's recently retired principal, Sherman Wilbur.

Wilbur, who expressed enthusiasm about the planned project before his retirement, has requested that the section be devoted to books dealing with outdoor life and activities. Several books have already been purchased to date and additional contributions are being solicited.

'I will Prepare Myself'

Life Pattern of Many Resembles the Bonsai Trees

MIKE ROTHENBERGER
Copyright Dale Carnegie & Associates Inc. 1971
All Rights Reserved

For many centuries the Japanese people have practiced the art of developing Bonsai trees. One who is skilled in the art can grow a forest of tiny trees that look as authentic and well porportioned as the giant redwood, yet only a few inches high.

The dwarfing process is accomplished through deliberate restriction. The tiny sprig or seed is planted in a small container in shallow soil. As it struggles to grow, its roots are pruned and its buds are pinched. Its growth is thwarted because it is confined in a small container and starved in shallow soil. It cannot grow because its roots have no place to go. Eventually the tree that could have become a giant of the forest ceases to grow at a height of only a few inches and accepts its sentence of life in captivity.

Except as an ornament its value is nil. It bears no nourishing fruit for the hungry; It offers no shade for the weary traveler, no shelter from the storm. It provides no place for the birds to nest, nor timber for the builder.

If the tiny seed had fallen to rich soil of the mountain side and had been planted by the wind and watered by the rain and the falling snow, its chances for usefulness would have been greatly enhanced. For then its roots would have been free to sink into the earth to search for the vital nutritional elements so necessary for its growth and development. Then it could have stood proud and stately for many years in its rightful place among its own kind. Then it could have fulfilled its purpose in the plan of nature.

The tree has no choice. If it is planted by nature in the wilderness, its chances of growth and development are good but if it long-constricted to the prison of a small container, it is doomed to live out its life as a dwarf.

The life pattern of many people resenbles that of the Bonsai. But man has a choice. If he doesn't like his circumstances he can change them. He can cultivate and nurture the roots of his mental growth throughout his lifetime. He can decree that they shall be ever free to reach out and penetrate deeply into the rich soil of knowledge, skill and personal development. His mind is his own over which he has complete control and no one can ever violate that right unless he himself consents.

Man can choose to live a meager existence. He can rise to the heights of success and achievement or he can establish his plane at any level between those extremes. He had this prerogative because of his inherent personal power, his greatest power of all, his power to choose what he will do with his life.

Business Week Planned at Community College

STONE RIDGE

A Business Week will be held at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College early in May.

For this week, representatives from different manufacturing facilities, banking institutions, retail stores and other businesses in the local area will present and demonstrate specific material to business classes at UCCC.

The activities planned will include demonstration of new business machines, store planning devices, financial plans and systems, display techniques and secretarial skills.

Planning for this Week was started at a recent meeting of the Business Studies Advisory Council at the College attended by 30 representatives of the local business community and members of the Business Division at the college.

Also discussed at the meeting was the installation of a student-operated Retail Store on the campus. Council members were told of the highly practical benefits students would receive from actual managing, buying, selling, accounting and a store planning experience.

Council members agreed to have four students named to the group, one to represent each of the four business programs at the college. The students would provide the Council with information and advice concerning curricula and community-college relations.

Professor Neil Whitehurst, Business Division chairman, lauded the forward steps that have been taken by the Council. He stressed the importance of a binding relationship between the UCCC faculty and local business leaders. In addition, he said it also was important to maintain good relations between local high school guidance and faculty members and UCCC instructors.

The Business Studies Advisory Council is being coordinated by Howard Mills, an assistant professor of business, who said planning for the coming Business Week is in the hands of a nucleus of "very interested business people." A. Bedell from the Business Division is directing the work groups involved in the planning for Business Week. He said the primary purpose is to make available to the College the valuable advice and assistance that can be provided by representatives of the local business community.

The Host Program Seeking Local Help

NEW YORK CITY

Kingston area families are needed to entertain English speaking European teachers in their homes for one or two weeks this summer, it was announced recently by the American Host Program.

According to Stuart Perkins, Board Chairman of the Host Program, the purpose of the program is to show the American "way of life" to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families.

Now in its ninth year, American Host has accommodated more than 2,000 European teachers.

Perkins noted that anyone is eligible to become a host family. The only requirements are a private room for the guest and free time for one or two weeks to introduce the visitor to friends, neighbors and fellow teachers.

Arrangements and further information can be obtained by contacting Tom Murphy, The American Host Program, Suite 1510, The Hotel New Yorker, New York City.

Area NASW Will Select 'Worker of Year'

POUGHKEEPSIE

The Mid-Hudson chapter of the 52,000 member National Association of Social Workers today announced the opening of the eighth consecutive observance of National Social Workers Month.

Sponsored by 172 NASW chapters coast-to-coast, the March 1971 observance has as its theme, "Social Workers — Advocates for People and Community Needs."

Emphasis is on the role social workers play in fighting for improved rights and services for the poor, racially oppressed, physically and mentally handicapped children, the elderly, and others vulnerable to serious social problems.

As part of its activities in connection with Social Workers Month, the Mid-Hudson chapter will select a local "Social Worker of the Year," who automatically becomes eligible for the national Howard F. Gustafson Memorial Award to be presented by NASW in Dallas, Texas, in June.

Let Freedom Ring... Justice Larkin to New U.S. Citizens

NEW CITIZENS — Supreme Court Justice John L. Larkin (L) hands a certificate indicating U. S. citizenship to two of 29 persons sworn in as new American citizens Tuesday in the Ulster County Court House. Center is Uwe Edwin Deisling of Kingston and right, Hildegard Eppert of Pine Bush, both formerly of Germany. Eppert said she was especially anxious to get her citizenshp because without it she was unable to travel to Germany in January when her father died. Now she is free to visit her former country and take care of his affairs. (Freeman photo by Haines).

KINGSTON

"Let me tell you of our promise to you," Supreme Court Justice John L. Larkin told the 27 immigrants who became new citizens of the U. S. Tuesday in ceremonies in the Ulster County Court House.

"We promise you pursuit of happiness. We do not promise happiness.

"We promise you equality of opportunity. We do not promise you riches.

"We promise you freedom of speech. We do not promise you wisdom in making those speeches.

"We promise you liberty. We do not promise you peace.

"Eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty," Justice Larkin concluded. "Let us then continue to be vigilant against those who would destroy, especially those who are citizens of this great land and who work ceaselessly to destroy us within.

"Let us strive ever on to the end that your children's children may always know the glorious fulfillment of one of the noblest cries of men . . . Let freedom ring."

The new citizens, residents of Ulster and Sullivan counties and one from Connecticut, came from a number of countries including Roumania, Ukraine, Germany, Italy, Hungary, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Argentina and Norway, among others.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Joyce-Schirick Post 1386 presented the Color Guard including Mrs. Edward Arnold, Mrs. Andrew Edge, Mrs. Dourlas Edwards, Mrs. William Jordan, Mrs. John Whalen and Mrs. Sidney Lane, president.

Kingston City Schools A Capella Choir performed with sopranos, Nancy Benson and Marjorie McFarland; altos, Michelle Burris and Christine Greene; tenors, Robert Golian and Barry Temple and basses, Ronald Newton and Richard Quick.

Buglers were Barry Low and Brett Naccarato of the school band.

Boy Scout Troop 63, Ashokan, with Thomas Fickus, scoutmaster were in attendance and included Robert Adsit, Daniel Adsit, John Mandrick, Michael Currie, Rudy Klix, George Winslow, Robert Davidson and William Davidson.

Representing the Daughters of the American Revolution were: Wiltwyck Chapter, Mrs. Frieda Dingee, Regent; Mrs. Adam Porter, Mrs. Charlotte Peck and Mrs. Albert Byrne. Saugerties Chapter, Mrs. Lewis Gaylord, Regent ; Mrs. Robert Freligh, Americanism chairman; Mrs. George Fetty, Mrs. William Young, Mrs. Daniel Lamouree, Mrs. Frank Riley, Mrs. Carol Nieffer and Mrs. Theodore Faulkner.

Guests included Troop 217, West Hurley, Mrs. Charles M. Ring, leader; Troop 92, Ulster Park, Mrs. William Daum, leader; Troop 29, Hurley, Mrs. Richard Rioux, leader.

New citizens include: Mrs. Sara Katz, Monticello, native of Roumania.

Mrs. Pauline Audrey Kelly, Monticello, England.

Paul Schaefer, Oakland Valley, stateless.

Mrs. Matilda Menegon, Liberty, Italy.

Gregori John Gadshian, Liberty, Germany.

Mrs. Monica Jeannet Kikendall, Liberty, Germany.

New Policy in Ellenville — Four Years of Physical Ed

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ

A policy making it mandatory for a student to complete successfully four years of physical education before being granted a diploma was tentatively adopted by the Ellenville School Board at its meeting Tuesday night.

The measure will not be formally adopted until the next meeting of the board, and further study concerning the exact wording of the measure was promised by board members.

According to School Superintendent Thomas Hayden, the adoption of the policy by the board is requested by the school administration to aid in overcoming a serious problem in the gym classes, both boys' and girls', which had developed at the Ellenville High School. Many students are either not showing up for class, or are showing up and refusing to dress, Hayden said.

Hayden said there was a general lack of interest in the physical education program, and the problem of non-participation was a wide-spread one. "Every school I've worked at has had this difficulty," said Hayden.

Board member Jack Siegel said the root of the problem was a dull program, and called for revisions. Hayden said some revisions were already in progress. Board member Eugene Houck said some students had lost articles of clothing when they dressed for gym, and called for tighter policing.

The board also tentatively approved a school policy for the control of extra classroom activity funds. Siegel said he was tentatively opposing it. Board member Dr. Arnold Wolff told Siegel the approval was not final, it was "just like getting engaged." Siegel said, "I want to know who I'm getting engaged with."

Easement was granted to the village for the laying of the new water line across the edge of school property. Houck, expressing dissatisfaction with the sewer and water rates charged the schools by the village, said the board should bargain with the village, and eventually voted against the measure.

Siegel asked for an inquiry into the situation in a sixth grade class which has had a large number of teachers during the school year (the number has been the subject of controversy, ranging from four to 12), and was at one point, according to Siegel, in "chaos." Hayden said he would not object to investigation, but pointed out he had two full time teachers in the class now to correct the damage done, and had specialists in reading and math working with the class too.

In response to a letter from the Town of Wawarsing Historian, Miss Katharine T. Terwilliger, the board agreed to either copy or preserve the old school records in its possession.

The Pine Grove Lunch Program was pronounced a success by Hayden, and the board extended it until the end of the school year.

The next regular meeting of the board was changed from April 13 to April 20 to avoid the school vacation.

Onteora Visitation

Information on how to select a college, visitations and tests needed for college admissions will be discussed at an informational meeting for Onteora High School juniors and their parents.

The meeting will take place tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the upstairs cafeteria of the school.

Thomas Pickus and Bert Ketcham, guidance counselors, will present the information and will have literature on the subject available. John Malloy of Kingston Trust Co. will discuss financial aid for the college-bound student.

Rhinebeck Zoning Law— Another Long Session

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

The Rhinebeck Village Board of Trustees went through another 1½ hours of labor pains during their 3½ hour session Tuesday night on further zoning law.

It was decided that March 30, 8 p.m. at the Town Hall would be the date or the next, and hopefully final, zoning public hearing. And Mayor Peter Sipperley expressed the hope that it would be possible to enact the law at that hearing in its final form.

Two points were hashed over — both were discussed at last week's public zoning hearing. It was decided to rescind the former decision to make a light manufacturing area on East Market Street where the Fried factory property is; and it was decided to have the commercial area extend northward on Montgomery Street (Route 9) to the northern boundary of Ruge's Sunoco station, instead of the previously mentioned Baptist Church boundary.

Mayor Sipperley explained that he had made a mistake in presenting this boundary at last week's hearing, and that the actual proposal at that time by the Planning Board had been to use the Ruge boundary, which is about one block further north than the church.

The decisions were anything but unanimous, with three informal votes against two carrying both proposed changes to put to the public in three weeks.

Much opposition to allowing the Fried property light manufacturing status was expressed at that hearing. Freid was not present, and later told Sipperley he thought that the point had already been satisfactorily decided, according to the mayor.

In other village business, the Board explained to Rhinebeck Board of Education member James Cecil that the reason the fire alarm box system was being discontinued is because of a better system.

Sipperley said that the plectron radio system currently in use is more efficient than the boxes and allows for faster response time. The Rhinebeck Fire Department has 75 radio units in use.

School officials had expressed concern that their buildings would be placed in jeopardy by the discontinuance of the fire alarm box system by the village.

And it was duly noted by Village Clerk Patricia Pflum that there are more than 1,200 village residents eligible to vote in the March 16 election. There is only one slate of candidates. Under similar circumstances two years ago only 35 persons voted. The village is carrying a referendum this year asking for permission to spend an additional $20,000 for furnishing the new village hall-firehouse complex.

Water plant contractor Frazier Associates told Mayor Sipperley that a minimum of $6,000 in repairs to the concrete floor would be needed. No cause has been found for the continued settling of the floor, and an estimated 8,000 gallons a day of water is escaping somewhere. Sipperley said, "It looks like we're bucking up against a stone wall," referring to solving the problems.

Notice of the resignation of village Zoning Board Chairman Constance Stewart was read, and Tim Yager was appointed to fill a gap in that board. John Armstrong was appointed new chairman. There is still one vacancy to be filled, with William Shepley a candidate for the spot.

And its was noted that the area Cub Scouts will conduct a bottle, aluminum can, paper drive this spring and summer. Sipperley suggested some village property to store the cans and bottles, and the idea will be looked into.

Equalization Rate Topic in Red Hook

RED HOOK

Red Hook Supervisor Warren Simmons said Tuesday night that the Town has had its equalization rate dropped two percentage points this year, because of inequities in assessment.

In a discussion on the one-versus-three man Board of Assessors, Simmons said that he had been notified that the state inspectors had dropped the equalization rate from 32 to 20 per cent on the basis of random sampling of 26 properties.

He also said that the one man professional full-time assessor had been chosen by the Town Board because the Board of Assessors suggested it and because it was felt the best move for the townspeople.

Justice Albert Trezza added that it would be only a matter of time until the town reached first class status anyway. First class status dictates a fulltime assessor and is reached when population reaches 10,000. According to the 1970 census, Red Hook has a population of 7,800.

Also brought up at the short Town Board meeting was an inquiry from George Plotsky of the Forest Park Civic Association on the status of the State Transportation Department's study of the Route 9G-199 intersection at the east end of the Kingston Rhinecliff Bridge approach.

Simmons said that the Department had assured him of notice when a decision had been reached on further traffic control measures, and he added that many spottings of state vehicles and state police cars had been confirmed in that area lately.

And Simmons told Board members that another public waste disposal forum would be held in Millbrook March 15.

Now there's a new, small Pontiac with a small-car price for small-car lovers.

Upper left, Ventura II Coupe with special Sprint package you can order. Foreground, Ventura II Coupe (4-door Sedan also available).

Wouldn't you know it would be fun to drive, stingy on gas, quick to service and built to last.

Of course you would. We wouldn't build a small car unless we figured it would give you more of what you want a small car for.

Take that low price. Ventura II is a small car, so it has a low, small-car price. But it's what you get for that small price that makes Ventura II worth a close look.

Ventura II is fun to drive. It should be, it's from the Wide-Track people. Which means you get a smooth, comfortable, Wide-Track ride.

The handling's quick. There's a nifty 111-inch wheelbase for easy parking. And both the 250-cu.-in. six and available 307-cu.-in. V-8 respond beautifully in city traffic or on the expressway.

Ventura II is stingy with your gas money. Both the standard six-cylinder engine and the V-8 you can order run beautifully on regular gas or the new low-lead and no-lead fuels. The carburetor on the six is an economical one-barrel, and the transmission for both six and V-8 is a practical 3-speed manual.

Ventura II is quick to service. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, you'll like fiddling around with the new Ventura II.

New twist-lock lamp sockets let you make changes in seconds.

The engine is uncomplicated, and there is plenty of engine-compartment space, especially with the six.

If you ever need to have somebody else work on your car—well, you'll like Ventura II, too. Both the standard six and available V-8 are tough, time-tested designs. Same goes for transmissions. The standard 3-speed manual and the available 2-speed automatic, Turbo Hydra-matic or floor-mounted 3-speed are all rugged, dependable units.

Ventura II is built to last. There's nothing lightweight about this car. It's welded—not bolted—at hundreds of strategic points to help keep it tight and quiet.

The body is heavy-gauge steel. And it has double paneling in the deck lid, hood and doors. You could probably sum it up best with three little words. Body by Fisher.

So, come on. If you're a small-car lover, stop by your Pontiac dealer's today. Tell him you want to see the new Ventura II. It's the small car that gives you more of what you want a small car for.

'Athletic' Version of Hamlet Due on Vassar Stage This Week

An unusual dramatic interpretation of "Hamlet," written by Joan Tenenbaum, a junior at Vassar College, will be presented at the College Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The 8 p.m. performances in Rockefeller 35 are open to the public.

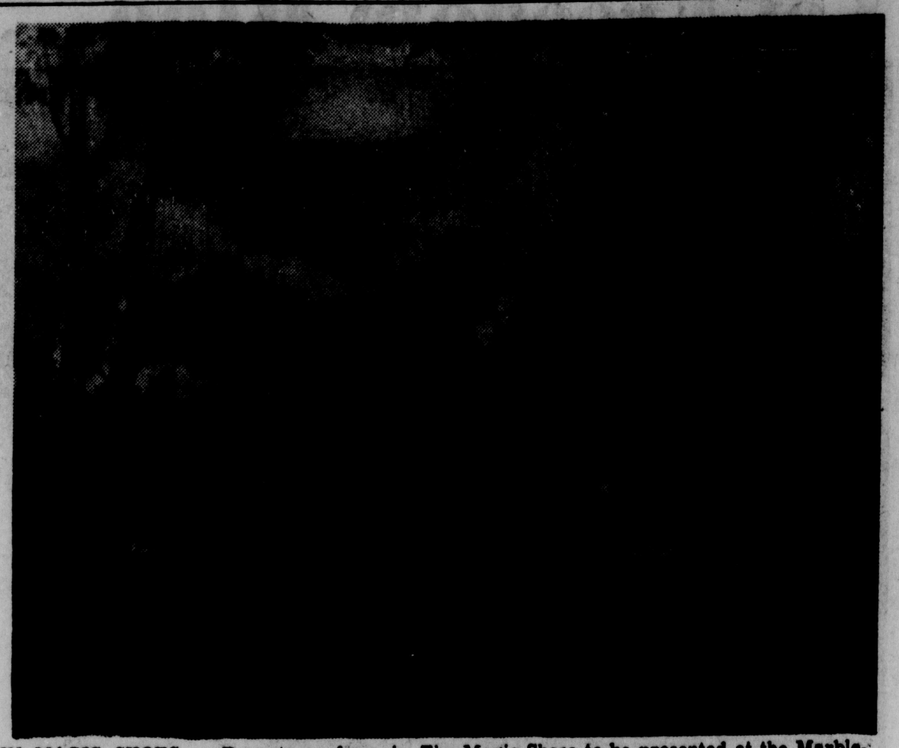

"Hamlet" was originally conceived by Miss Tenenbaum as an English paper dealing with several themes in Shakespeare's play, as well as in a general question of the proper relation of personalities to political systems. It took on dramatic form when Miss Tenenbaum decided that there were personalities in the drama department who possessed the same qualities she had been discussing in her paper.

The final project is as much as esssay in experimental playwriting as in Shakespearean political science. Part of the script was revised during some preliminary rehearsals, which were held solely for the purpose of testing the newly written material for its dramatic success. Miss Tenenbaum was surprised to find that a least one-fourth of her original script was completely disposable. She describes her finished product as "just a little tighter, faster paced, and more interesting than before." She also found that "it is amazing how much information can be translated through the subtle gestures of the actor rather than through the direct explanation of words."

She went on to say that "by directing the production of my own writing, I was enabled to look at the structure of my play from an entriely new angle.

"As a director, I was automatically concerned with such things as pacing, patterns, and dramatic rhythms. These are things which a good playwright must also have a grasp of, but as a first-semester college playwright, I was totally unaware of them. Then I began to understand the mistakes in my own writing as they hindered my work as a first-semester college director. I do not think there is a better way to learn about pacing, patterns, and dramatic rhythms." When asked if that was all she learned, Miss Tenenbaum replied, "Come and see."

The production is co-directed by Nancy Barber, a sophomore. The large cast features Fred Kaplan, Cindy Woll, Roselee Blooston, Anne Morea, and Anne Checchi. So far, cast members have shared one broken foot, two heavily bruised knees, a sprained wrist, and three cracked heads. Fred Kaplan, who plays Hamlet, explains, "This is a rather athletic show." Roselee Blooston, who plays the Ape, remarks, "If you think we look bad, you should see Rocky 35."

IN MAGIC SHOES — Puppets perform in The Magic Shoes to be presented at the Marbletown Elementary School Auditorium Saturday, March 20, starting 1:30 p. m. The presentation by the Herrick Marionettes is being sponsored by the Stone Ridge Nursery School. Mrs. Harriet Nodel, publicity chairman may be contacted for ticket information.

Catherine Fedden and Vincent Van Loan Exchange Vows

Miss Catherine Louise Fedden, stepdaughter and daughter, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Williams of Box 75, Ulster Park, became the bride of Vincent J. VanLoan, son of Mrs. Esther VanLoan, Port Ewen, and the late Leslie VanLoan, on Saturday, Feb. 27 at 12 noon in The Sacred Heart Church, Esopus.

The Rev. Eugene Grohe officiated at the double ring ceremony and Mrs. Howard Ives of Ulster Park provided traditional wedding selections. White pompons and carnations decorated the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her step-father. She selected an empire, A-line gown of white peau de soie with a low scooped neckline and bishop sleeves. Fine rose point lace covered the bodice and sleeves with scalloped edging at the high waist. Her chapel train was outlined with scalloped lace and she wore a petal profile with four tiers of French illusion veiling. She carried a bouquet of potpourri carnations, stephanotis stock and pompons, trimmed with white velvet bow.

The sister of the bride, Miss Susan Fedden of Kingston, served as maid of honor. Miss Fedden wore an A-line gown, skirted in pink karate with a cranberry velvet bodice and bishop sleeves. A braid of silver and rainbow colors trimmed the high stand-up collar, encircled the high waist and formed a shirt waist effect. She also wore a matching triple bow of velvet and carried a colonial bouquet of miniature carnations and pompons, accented with white satin streamers.

Attendants were Mrs. William Watkins, sister of the bridegroom, of Poughkeepsie; and Miss Barbara Gorsline of East Kingston. They wore mint Karate and forest green gowns similar in style to that of the honor attendant and carried colonial bouquets of miniature carnations and pompons, trimmed in satin streamers.

Miss Patricia VanLoan, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl. She wore a gown identical in style as the maid of honor and carried minature carnations and pompons.

John J. VanLoan, brother of the bridegroom, Glenford, was best man. Ushers were Joseph Scully, Connelly and John Gillespie, Port Ewen.

A reception for 115 guests was held at the Vineyard Lodge, Friendly Acres, Ulster Park.

For her wedding journey through the northern part of the United States, the bride wore a brown pants suit and a yellow pompons corsage.

Mrs. VanLoan is a graduate of Kingston High School where she majored in Practical Nursing and is employed by the Kingston Hospital. Her husband attended Kingston High School and served two years in Vietnam with the U.S. Army. He is employed in the construction trade at Fishkill.

They will make their home in Rifton.

Market Promises Good Buys

During the next few days retail meat prices are expected to hold fairly steady with the past week, according to the Market Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. The one exception will probably be found in store specials on some cuts of pork. Supplies are ample for all types of meat, except veal, and retailers will offer a variety of feature items for the thrifty shopper.

As supply and demand stay in fairly even balance for beef, the wholesale prices continue to be firm. Special items will be varied but limited more to forequarter cuts, such as chuck steak regular around 59 cents, semi-boneless around 65 cents and boneless around 89 cents. Chuck roast where featured will range from 48 cents to 58 cents, semi-boneless around 65 cents. Boneless Boston roast, boneless bottom round and boneless cross rib roast will special in a 98 cents to $1.09 range, as well as boneless rump roast at $1.19. There will be a few sales on second cut rib roast and rib steak at 99 cents. A few stores will feature franks at 59 cents to 69 cents, beef liver 39 cents, short ribs 59 cents, sirloin steak around 99 cents, T-bone and porterhouse $1.29 to $1.39, and ground beef around 65 cents. Many stores will special the St. Patrick's Day favorite, corned beef, and prices will range from 79 cents to 89 cents.

Pork will continue to be widely featured again this week with prices in some cases lower than last week. Sale prices on pork are now an excellent buy and should give a welcome relief to thrifty shoppers. There will such items featured as loin loin roast rib end as low as 39 cents, loin end 49 cents, rib half and loin half roast will be such items featured as Also on sale in some stores will be quarter loin roast at 68 cents, center cut roast at 78 cents and whole loins at 59 cents. A few stores will have specials on center cut rib and chops at 69 cents to 79 cents, and loin end 89 cents, also country style spareribs from 49 cents to 55 cents, roll sausage from 39 cents to 59 cents, and link sausage at 79 cents. Fresh ham where on sale will be 49 cents to 55 cents for shank half and 59 cents to 65 cents for butt half. A few stores will feature cooked ham shank end 49 cents and butt end 59 cents, and bacon from 69 cents to 79 cents.

There will be very few features on veal and lamb. Poultry continues an excellent buy and some stores will special fryers at 29 cents, cut-up 39 cents, stewing hens 49 cents, turkeys from 39 cents to 43 cents and ducks at 59 cents.

Art Exhibition Opens at UCCC

An exhibition of new paintings and drawings by Henry Betak, a contemporary New York artist, opened on Monday at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College. It will continue through April 6.

The exhibit is on view in the Visual Arts Gallery of the John Burroughs Science Building. There is no admission charge and is open to the public during regular college hours, Monday through Friday.

This exhbition is a one-man show of the work of a professor of art at Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs.

Betak's work is represented in various private collections throughout the United States, England and Japan.

His many exhibitions have included the "National Print and Drawing Competition" in Knoxville, Tenn.; "Purdue National Invitational Exhibition" in Lafayette, Ind.; "Lancaster County Williams - Proctor Institute's "Artists of Central New York Exhibition" in Utica.

A native of Pottsville, Pa., Mr. Betak was educated at the Tyler School of Art of Temple University where he earned B.F.A. and M.F.A. degrees. He also has studied at the Philadelphia College of Art and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Fifth Generation

The recent arrival of Lance Salmi, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Eino Salmi Jr. of Esopus, creates a unique situation in the family in that the child enjoys five living generations of relatives, both maternal and paternal. Standing are (l-r) Lance's father, Eino Salmi Jr., and his great grandfather, John Klonowski of Kingston. Mrs. Kathryn Smith of St. Remy, seated right, is the child's grandmother, and Mrs. Tillie Klonowski, 92, of Kingston is great great grandmother. The baby's maternal grandfather, Virgil Helzer, resides at Lake Katrine, and his great grandmother and great great grandmother live in South Dakota. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Great Decisions Series Starts Tonight

"Great Decisions," a series of eight programs dealing with United States foreign policy, will be broadcast by WGHQ, 94.3 FM in the public interest, starting this evening 7:30 to 8, and continuing for the next seven Wednesday evenings.

The broadcasts feature current developments in foreign policy discussed by guest speakers and panelists, specialists in each area of foreign affairs.

The topics will be broadcast in the following sequence; Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia; The Middle East Conflict; Latin America and the U.S.; Man and His Environment; Communist China and the U.S.; Dissent, Public Opinion, and Foreign Policy; West Germany; National Priorities and World Peace.

The "Great Decisions" program is researched and its format is prepared by the Foreign Policy Association, a national, non-partisan, non-profit organization. "It is working to help develop an informed, thoughtful, articulate public opinion on international issues. It does so in the belief that, in the long run, U.S. foreign policy can be no better than that which the electorate is willing to support. It conducts programs for adults and aids our nation's schools by encouraging impartial factual analysis of current foreign policy problems."

The interviews are prepared and taped by Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich. and released as a public service, to cooperating radio stations.

The Kingston Branch of the American Association of University Women, in cooperation with the Foreign Policy Association, has initiated the discussion groups now participating in this program in the Hudson Valley area. Both organizations also cooperated with WGHQ to make these public interest broadcasts possible.

Members of the Chapters of the League of Women Voters and branches of the American Association of University Women of Woodstock, Catskill, Kingston, New Paltz, Saugerties are planning and have already organized study groups.

Students and faculty members of the Saugerties, Kingston, Rondout Valley, Ellenville and Onteora High Schools have been contacted to participate in the hope that these programs further encourage and enrich classroom social studies discussions.

Several interested citizens groups are being formed, Among these is a new group, the Public Affairs Discussion Group of the Town of Olive.

Those interested in joining or forming groups and obtaining the "Great Decisions" Foreign Policy study guide, a well-researched background publication, may contact Mrs. Robert Resta, Kingston; Mrs. Othman Abu-Gheida; Stone Ridge: Mrs. Antoinette Tennant, Samsonville: Mrs. Jack Kahn, West Hurley; Mrs. Richard Messina, Saugerties.

Applicants Vie for Young Artist Title

There are twenty-seven applicants for the Hudson Valley Philharmonic's Young Artists Competition this year. The competition, sponsored by the Friends of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, will be held for the fifth year on March 20th and 21. The finals of the competition are open to the public and will begin at 3 p.m. at Skinner Hall at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie.

One of the most remarkable applicants this year is Denis Brott of Montreal. At 20 years old, Denis is the youngest member of the Brott family, all of whom are professional musicians. This young Canadian cellist has already had a full career as a professional. Currently, he has the position of Teaching Assistant at Indiana University, where he is completing his studies toward an Artists Diploma with famed cellist Janos Starker.

Denis has performed as soloist with an impressive list of orchestras which include the Montreal Symphony Orchestra, the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, the National Orchestra of Canada, the Quebec Symphony Orchestra, the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra and the Little Symphony of London.

In the fall of 1967 Denis was invited to perform with the Little Symphony of London at a special Canadian Centennial Concert where he was presented to the Dutchess of Kent.

Among the battery of prizes which the young cellist has won are several Canadian awards, as well as first prize in the prestigious Merriweather Post Competition in Washington, D.C. Most recently, this January he was winner of a competition to appear as soloist with the Philharmonic Orchestra at Indiana University.

Denis has his own fascinating story, as does every one of the twenty-seven applicants, Mrs. David Stevenson, Chairman of the Young Artists' Competition, who knows the applicants better than anyone else because of her correspondence with them; feels certain that "the competition will be a close and stiff one, and that the community will enjoy the encounter with the students from all over the world."

Saugerties Jayncees Welcome New Member in Rites

At the recent membership meeting the Saugerties Jayncees welcomed Mrs. Charles Lounsbury as a new member. President, Mrs. James Mowrer presented Mrs. Lounsbury her membership pin during a candlelight induction ceremony, with the second vice-president, Mrs. Robert Saturn, and membership chairman, Mrs. John Lawrence, taking part. Several guests were in attendance including: Mrs. Joel Fox, District II president; Mrs. Joseph Vartanesian, State Leadership Training Manual chairman; Mrs. Ronald Willing and Mrs. Jerry O'Leary.

A report on the Beautiful Baby Contest, now in progress, was given. Awards include: First: $50 U.S. Savings Bond; Second: Color portrait by Jeffery Buchle of International Photography; Third: a ten dollar gift certificate donated by London's Department Store, Saugerties.

All Ulster County residents ages one to four are eligible. Submit a recent photo of your child along with the one dollar entry fee no later than March 13th. The child's name and age plus parents name and address should appear on the back of the picture. Include a self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the photograph. All proceeds will go towards the scholarship fund. Send pictures to: Saugerties Jayncees, RD 2, Box 518J, Saugerties.

The March membership meeting will be March 23rd at the Saugerties Savings Bank. Anyone interested should contact Mrs. John Lawrence, membership chairman.

Elks Auxiliary Officers Elected

Mrs. Charles Cozza was elected president of Elks Auxiliary No. 550 at the March meeting. Those who will serve with her include Mrs. Anthony Cruisce, vice president; Mrs. Dewey Logan, secretary; Mrs. George Karabinos, financial secretary; and Mrs. William Morris, treasurer. Members of the nominating committee were Mrs. Janet Brooks and Mrs. John Wooley.

Installation will take place at the April meeting.

The annual spring banquet will take place at Leherb's Restaurant. Chairman of the event is Mrs. George Karabinos, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Oppenheimer. The event is scheduled for Tuesday, May 4. Mrs. Dewey Logan is in charge of reservations with Mrs. Anthony Cruisce handling gifts. Letters will be mailed to members concerning details.

The auditing committee, Mrs. Cruisce, Mrs. Joseph Oppenheimer, and Mrs. Nathan Badian, will audit the books at the next meeting.

An Open Letter...

from "Mickey" Duncan
Director
Hidden Valley

Hidden Valley LAKE
Whiteport Rd., Kingston
Dear Club Chairmen . . .

If, after a long winter, your group needs some pepping up, some new interest and vitality, may we suggest a tonic: holding your next meeting in the beautiful Lodge Rooms of Hidden Valley?

Hidden Valley is just a short ride from anywhere in the area, and the atmosphere of winter-wonderland and soon-to-be-spring landscape, is the perfect setting for luncheons, meetings, parties, fashion shows and get-to-gethers!

Two huge wood-burning stone fireplaces grace our meeting rooms, with sliding glass doors opening to a balcony overlooking nature's never-ending panorama of beauty! Our cozy snack bar is always open. And, of course, come summer, we offer the ideal facilities for your club's picnic, outing or clambake!

Make your next meeting something else. Join the un-bored at Hidden Valley. Call me today for details, or better yet, get your committee off its apathy, and come on out!

Enthusiastically,
"Mickey" Duncan

Joe Bush Heads All-County Selections

By MORT LAFFIN and IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON

Offensive consistency and rebounding strength make the 1971 Daily Freeman All-County High School Basketball team one of the most well-balanced ever.

Our selections are of the standouts, the performers who typified team-play by going all out on both ends of the court. Premier among them is Joe Bush, senior guard and co-captain of the Onteora High School Indians. In this campaign of unselfishness on the court, Bush is our Player of the Year.

RON PAPE

He is joined by nine others who were chosen without regard to position but with the focus on game by game output. They are: Tony Adams, the young center from Kingston High School; Bill McAfee, the leader of Wallkill High School's emergence from the UCAL basement; Don Hastings, Coleman High's first-class athlete; Emilio "Vino" Platts, KHS's top-notch all-around star; Rich Koegel, good-looking center from Saugerties High School; Brad Hart, the deceptive forward from New Paltz High; Harold Anderson, bullish corner man from New Paltz High; Dan Smith, center on Onteora's UCAL championship team; and Bill Joyner, basketball player par-excellence at Rondout Valley.

The Coach of the Year? None other than Ron Pape of Onteora whose team was the best example of our All-County squad: a molded unit without a big star.

Below are capsule summaries of the selections:

* * *

RON PAPE — Coach, Onteora High School — In selecting a Coach of the Year, the easy thing to do is pick the head man of the championship club. Onteora won the Ulster County Athletic League so choose Pape on that basis alone, right? Wrong.

Onteora took the crown without the help of a superstar. The Indians were a group of five good ball players and it was Ron Pape's job to develop them into a unit. That's why he's our pick for thet bes mentor of the season. Onteora won because it had the horses, sure. But it also had the best man in th esaddle.

* * *

JOE BUSH — Senior, Onteora High School — Smooth is the word for the Ulster County Athletic League champion's star guard and the Daily Freeman Player of the Year. Only the constant chomping of his mouth on a slab of gum during a game would indicate that Bush is tense when on the floor. He can do it all on both ends of the court, possessing an accurate jumper, a good change of pace dribble, fine moves to the hoop, surprising rebounding talent, and excellent rebounding ability.

JOE BUSH

TONY ADAMS

"He is an excellent all-around guard," say Coach Pape of the Boiceville team. "He keeps his poise and is a very easy person to coach. It's been a plesaure working with him."

STATISTICS: 15 games; 250 points — 16.6 avg.; 100 rebounds — 6.7 average; 120 assists — 8.0 average; field goals attempted — 220, Made — 97, 44.1 per cent; free throws attempted — 89, made — 56, 62.7 per cent.

* * *

DAN SMITH—Senior, Onteora High School — A winning team nesds a good big man and in this 6-4, 200 pounder, the champion Boiceville Indians had one. Smith could do what was needed of a pivot man: maneuver underneath on offense and rebound on either side of the floor. But Dan also had that something extra. He could shoot from the outside in order to take the opposition's threat away from the hoop.

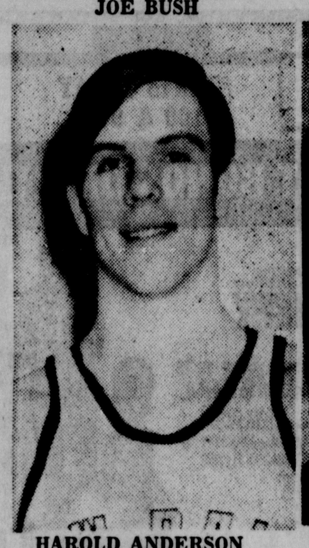

"He had that good outside shot and good inside moves," Coach Pape observes. "His defensive work was good and he was the inspirational leader to the team all year long. He always seemed to come down with the key rebound."

STATISTICS: 17 games; 224 points — 13.1 average; 243 rebounds—14.3 average; 51 assists — 3.0 average; field goals attempted — 179 — made 85 — 41.8 average; free throws attempted —95—made 54—56.8 average.

* * *

HAROLD ANDERSON — Senior, New Paltz High School—Sometimes he would burst up for a rebound as if he were going through the Baltimore Colts defensive line. Other times this husky forward would shoot with the finesse of a ballarina. At all times he would give Coach Frank Davis' fine New Paltz team 100 per cent. A dependable player, Anderson was at his best underneath latching onto key caroms.

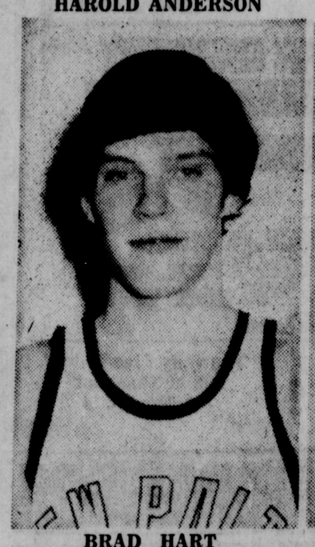

"He was a solid two-year performer," says Coach Davis, "very coachable. He was strong on the boards, especially on the offensive side, and he was an above average shooter."

STATISTICS: 19 games; 211 points — 1.1 average; 199 rebounds—10.5 average; 76 assists — 4.0 average; field goals attempted — 179 — made—115, 43.0 per cent; free throws attempted —86—made—44, 51.1 per cent.

* * *

BILL McAFEE—Senior, Wallkill High School—McAfee shouldered most of the offensive load for Wallkill. A three-year varsity performer, Bill hit for a total of 332 points in 16 games for a 20.7 mark. McAfee also captured the Ulster County Athletic League scoring title.

"We depended on Bill for offensive consistency and he gave it to us," said Wallkill Mentor Ken Michaelsen. "Bill would be scoring and we would win a couple of games. And, all of sudden, he was facing double and triple coverage. This boy has a lot of hustle and a lot of courage. It goes without saying that we will miss him next year," concluded Michelsen.

STATISTICS: 16 games; 332 pts.—20.7 average; 150 rebounds — 9.9 average; 12 assists — 0.8 average; field goal attempted—316, made — 132, 41 per cent; foul shots attempted—114, made —68, 59 per cent.

* * *

TONY ADAMS — Sophomore, Kingston High School—Adams, a 6-5 center who has been described by KHS Coach Mike Rienzo as a still growing boy, was one of the main reasons for the area high school cage scene. The "Big Man" hit 301 points for a 15.8 average over 19 games and pulled down 205 rebounds. The hub of the attack, Adams also handed out 25 assists.

"Tony became stronger with each game," said Rienzo. "His ability to score from all around the key, plus his defensive ability, gave us the big lift that we needed. Tony never played in any high school competition before and he's bound to get better," concluded Rienzo.

STATISTICS: 19 games; 301 pts.—15.2 average; 205 rebounds —10.7 average; 25 assists—1.3; field goals attempted—245, made —112, 45 per cent; foul shots attempted—141, made 77, 54 per cent.

* * *

RICH KOEGEL—Junior, Saugerties High School — While basketball fortunes at Saugerties High remained below what Coach Jerry Hawkins expected them to be, Koegel became a standout performer for the Sawyers. The 6-2½ cager hit for 298 points in 17 games for a 17.6 average. He also pulled down a total of 228 rebounds for a 14.0 per-game average and handed out 68 assists.

"Rich was the key to any success we had this season," said Hawkins. He had to be at his best at all times. He is a fine team player with real good attitude. He did everything well, a real take-charge guy."

STATISTICS: 17 games; 298 pts.—17.6 average; 228 rebounds —14.0 average; 68 assists—4.0 average; field goals attempted—255, made — 110, 43 per cent; foul shots attempted—100, made —70, 70 per cent.

* * *

DON HASTINGS—Senior, John A. Coleman High School—When Hasting was on, Coleman's team was in the ballgame. When he was off, so were the Statesmen. "Dandy Don," one of the best streak shooters in the area, scored 332 points in 18 games for an average of 18.4 points-per-tilt, one of the best in the County.

Said Don't Coach, Bill DuBois: "I think Don is probably one of the finest high school shooters I have ever seen. If he didn't score, we didn't win, it's that simple. He was the hub of our team and his offensive output overshadowed his defensive ability."

STATISTICS: 18 games, 332 pts.—18.4 average; 144 rebounds —8 average; 54 assists—3 average; field goals attempted—365, made—146, 40 per cent; foul shots attempted—90, made—40, 44 per cent.

* * *

VINO PLATTS—Junior, Kingston High School—One of the finest shooters in Ulster County, Vino had a mild slump in midseason but recovered in the last four games to be one of the Maroons' scoring leaders. A fine all-around performer, Platts averaged 13.6 points-per-game, totaling 260 markers. He pulled down 134 rebounds and handed out 60 assists.

"Vino is one of the best streak shooters in the business," said Rienzo. "He can hit from anywhere. He is also one of the most unselfish players I have seen. There were many times this season that he drew double coverage. And, there was also many times I wished he would have shot more," concluded the KHS mentor.

STATISTICS: 19 games; 260 pts.—13.6 average; 134 rebounds —7.4 average; 60 assists—3.3 average; field goals attempted —281, made—108; 37 per cent; foul shots attempted—65, made 44, 67 per cent.

* * *

BRAD HART — Senior, New Paltz High School—One of the most deceptive players in the County, Hart looks more like a second baseman than a corner man. But he was the possessor of a good looking outside shot and had surprising rebound strength because of his jumping ability.

"He was a natural shooter and a fantastic leaper," points out Coach Davis, "and showed tremendous improvement this season. He was also a very solid two-year performer for me at New Paltz."

STATISTICS: 19 games; 265 points—13.9 average; 112 rebounds—5.9 average; 38 assists —2.0 average; field goals attempted—288, made—115, 39.9 per cent; free throws attempted —53, made—39, 54.7 per cent.

* * *

BILL JOYNER—Junior, Rondout Valley High School—Possessing a great deal of talent already and an unreaped amount of potential, this Gander guard-forward is a glider. All of his moves on the floor are seemingly effortless. He can shoot from a distance or from close up and averaged nearly 11 rebounds a game despite being just six-feet tall.

"He has tremendous physical ability," says his coach John "Chick" Meehan. "We certainly couldn't have finished as high as we did without him. Of course, he still has a lot to learn but he has tremendous potential."

STATISTICS: 19 Games; 338 points—17.8 average; 203 rebounds—10.7 average; 53 assists —2.8 average; field goals attempted 310—made 144, 46.4 per cent; free throws attempted—109, made—50, 45.9 per cent.

Bucks Lose; That's No Bull

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The Buck Stops Here," read the sign on President Truman's desk. Now it belongs to Chicago's Bulls.

The Bulls stopped Milwaukee's Bucks cold Tuesday night as reserve guard Bobby Weiss scored six of his 12 points in a furious overtime session that gave Chicago a 110-103 victory and cut the Bucks' record-setting National Basketball Association victory string at 20 games.

Bob Love hit 23, Jerry Sloan and Tom Boerwinkle had 21 apiece and Chet Walkec added 20 to lead the Bulls' balanced attack that nullified Lew Alcindor's 39 points for Milwaukee.

In other NBA games Seattle tripped the New York Knicks 114-99, Philadelphia toppled Cleveland 124-113, Phoenix stopped Detroit 114-108, Baltimore belted Los Angeles 107-95, Boston bombed San Francisco 134-112 and San Diego smacked Buffalo 106-96.

In the American Basketball Association the New York Nets downed Virginia 132-120, Denver walloped Texas 146-127 and Utah buzzed the Floridians 122-112.

Don Smith hit a career-high 37 points and Spencer Haywood added 26 as Seattle snapped a 90-90 tie to pull away from the Knicks and end a nine-game losing skein in New York. Walt Frazier had 19 to top the Knicks, who held the lead in the early going.

Philadelphia scored the first 10 points of the game and never looked back as the 76ers handed the Cavaliers their 62nd defeat in 75 contests. Billy Cunningham had 23 for the winners and Bobby Smith scored 22 for Cleveland.

Montreal Ties Canucks' Team

By United Press International

Montreal and Vancouver had some unfinished business Tuesday night but things didn't exactly turn out as the Canadiens had planned.

Montreal and Vancouver fought to a 3-3 tie in a game that had been postponed from last Thursday night because of a 19-inch snowfall. The deadlock certainly didn't help the Canadiens in their efforts to overtake second place New York in the National Hockey League's East Division but for the last place Canucks, the tie snapped a six-game losing streak.

Yvan Cournoyer, John Ferguson and rookie Bobby Sheehan got Montreal off to a quick start with first period goals but Vancouver managed to score a goal in every period. The knotter came off the stick of rookie Danny Johnson at the 7:26 mark of the third period. Rosaire Paiement had tallied Vancouver's first two goals, his 24th and 25th of the season.

The tie left Montreal 12 points behind New York while Vancouver moved to within five points of sixth place Detroit in its efforts to escape the cellar.

In the only other NHL contest, Mike Byers' two goals and the shutout goaltending of Denis DeJordy helped Los Angeles down St. Louis 4-0.

Goldbacks, Clarkstown Reach Section 9 Finals

Newburgh Free Academy and Clarkstown will face each other in a re-match of last year's battle for the Tournament One Division of Section Nine basketball play Saturday night, 7 p.m. at Elting Gym on the campus of New Paltz State. The Tournament Three game will be played at 1 p.m. with the Tournament Two tilt following.

In last night's action, the Goldbacks, 17-0 this season and winners of 33 straight, defeated Rockland County's Nyack, 98-63, in a semifinal contest. In the other semifinal, the Rams topped a stubborn Spring Valley team, 76-65.

Last year's game saw the then unranked NFA quintet blow Clarkstown off the floor with an 18-1 spurt in the first three minutes, and then go on to take an easy victory.

Newburgh is ranked third in the state, behind St. Agnes of Rockville Center, L. I., and Mount Vernon. Clarkstown doesn't figure in the Top Ten this season, despite a 19-1 record overall.

There will be advanced ticket sales at the door for the Tourney One game. All sales will be handled by the respective schools.

Joe Promises Ali Rematch 'Anytime'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Frazier, boxing's man of the hour, contemplated his future today while Muhammad Ali talked of another crack at the heavyweight title and the promoters of Monday night's bout counted the returns from closed circuit television.

Frazier, 27, was under heavy pressure from his manager and handlers to retire but already has promised Ali a return bout "at any time."

Ali, stripped of the aura of invincibility that once surrounded him but with no reason to be ashamed of his 15-round defeat at the hands of Frazier, blamed his loss on his own "clowning" in the middle rounds and predicted, "Next time it will be different."

Jerry Perenchio and Chartwell Artists, the promoters of the bout, said returns from the closed circuit telecasts had passed $10-million and that they might top $20-million. Last-minute rushes for tickets were reported in many areas where closed circuit ticket sales had lagged during the fight buildup. Even Frazier's manager and handlers would be surprised if the heavyweight champion took their advice to retire. He is believe to be receptive to a return bout in early 1972 at Jack Kent Cooke's Forum in Inglewood, Calif. It was Cooke who put up $4.5 million of the $5 million guarantee to be split between Frazier and Ali for Monday night's bout.

The thinking in Frazier's camp is (1) that a second bout with Ali this year would be unrealistic because of tax bites and (2) that Ali is the logical next opponent for Joe because George Foreman, the fast-rising former Olympic champion, is 18 months to two years away from challenging for the title.

One cloud hanging over the thinking is that Ali could be forced to serve a five-year jail sentence if he loses his Supreme Court appeal to overturn his draft evasion conviction.

Ali popped up, alive and well Tuesday afternoon in a midtown hotel, and said he thought he won "at least nine rounds." At the same time, he praised Frazier as a great slugger and offered no alibis for his defeat.

"He's (Frazier) not skillful, but he's good in his style," said Ali. "He keeps comin' at you. Boy! Joe Frazier's tough. He hits harder than anyone I ever fought. That was a helluva punch he knocked me down with. When you see me on my behind, you know that the punch must have had somethin' behind it."

Reports from closed circuit television exhibitors indicated that the promotion sold well and that there were only six mechanical failures in the 350-odd theaters, auditoriums, etc., in which the telecast was viewed. All previous financial records already have been surpassed with the only question remaining, "how high is up?"

Both Frazier and Ali seemed to agree on one thing—their actual return from the multi-million dollar fight will be about $370,000. Ali, who said he was speaking for both fighters, said the federal government would get $1.5-million off the top, New York State would get $384,000 and that the training expenses for each totaled about $255,000.

He stopped short, however, of asking to borrow a dime from a reporter when he wanted to make a telephone call.

THE SWOLLEN LIP — Muhammad Ali, pausing to chat with fans outside his hotel, points to swollen jaw yesterday. The former heavyweight champ is returning to his Cherry Hill, N. J., home. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Perennial Stars Are Blooming

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ah, the flowers that bloom in the spring. Willie Mays ... Frank Robinson ... Harmon Killebrew ... Al Kaline.

The four creaky old codgers took some of the exhibition baseball play away from the phenoms Tuesday and probably sent a hopeful rookie or two packing for the next bus to the bushes.

Mays, less than two months away from the age where life begins, belted a single, double and triple and drove in four runs to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 7-3 victory over San Diego.

Robinson, 35 years young, walloped his first spring homer, a two-run shot, as the Baltimore Orioles edged Montreal 5-4.

Killebrew, who'll be 35 before the All-Star break, cracked his second homer of the exhibition season in Minnesota's 6-1 triumph over Kansas City and Jim Perry, a mere youth of 34, hurled three scoreless innings.

Kaline, 36, hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning that gave the Detroit Tigers an 8-7 win over winless Cincinnati, despite two solo homers by the Reds' Lee May.

The old folks didn't have a lock on the heroics, though.

Tim Foli, bidding to become a first-ever fixture in the New York Mets' decade-long permanent floating third base game, drove in two runs with a pair of singles in a 3-0 verdict over Pittsburgh. Gary Gentry, Danny Frisella, Ron Taylor and Rich Folkers held the Pirates to two hits, both off Frisella.

Oakland's Dwain Anderson, top candidate for the vacant second base job, hammered a home run and two doubles as the A's outslugged the Chicago Cubs 11-5.

Joe Hague, who came of age last year with St. Louis, continued his hot spring hitting with a single and two doubles in the Cards' 9-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox, whose loose play made one wonder about Carl Yastrzemski's prediction that they could have a super defense.

Los Angeles' Bill Singer returned to action for the first time since suffering a broken finger last August and pitched three innings of one-hit ball in a 5-4 win over the New York Yankees. The Yanks' 'B' team downed Washington 6-3.

The Chicago White Sox scored four runs in the first inning and went on to beat Philadelphia 7-2 while the Houston Astros rallied for five in the ninth and nipped Atlanta 7-6.

A three-run homer by Ted Savage clifted the Milwaukee Brewers over Cleveland 6-5 and the California Angels pushed across two runs in the ninth to edge Japan's Lotte Orions 2-1.

Off the field, the Oakland A's learned they probably will have to do without pitcher Blue Moon Odom for several months. The right-hander is recovering from arm surgery and has been told to throw at less than half-speed until April 15 and only 50 per cent for several weeks after that.

Another Oakland pitcher, Chuck Dobson, said his comments were "ballooned completely out of proportion" recently when he was quoted as saying he had taken pep pills, or "greenies."

Dobson said he wanted to make it clear he was against the use of drugs and said he took the pills before pitching last season when he was weakened by the flu.

Shortstop Don Kessinger will miss the Cubs' next five exhibitions with a slight bone chip on the middle finger of his right hand and right-hander Mel Stottlemyre of the Yankees has been told to take it easy for a week with his annual shoulder miseries.

Buckeyes Take Big 10 Crown

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State's Buckeyes wrapped up the Big Ten basketball championship and an NCAA tournament bid Tuesday night, but, thanks to a recent ruling, interest remains high through Saturday's final round of competition.

Ohio State, behind Jim Cleamons' 30 points, swamped Indiana 91-75 for its seventh Big Ten title in the last 13 seasons under Fred Taylor, dean of Big Ten coaches.

The triumph ended the regular season for Ohio State with a 19-5 over-all record. The Buckeyes will move into the Mid-East Regional NCAA playoff against either Marquette or Miami of Ohio.

Incentive, however, will not cease in the Big Ten because of a conference ruling Monday paving the way for the Big Ten runnerup to accept an invitation to the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

Michigan retained the inside track for the runnerup spot with an 86-82 victory at Iowa to give the Wolverines an 11-2 record in conference play.

Purdue, boosting its record to 10-3, scored an 81-77 victory at Wisconsin. In other Big Ten games, Northwestern upset Illinois 85-70 and Michigan State edged Minnesota 73-71.

Elsewhere Brown defeated Rhode Island 95-78 and Colgate topped NYU 85-77.

Rusty Tyler closed out his varsity career for Brown with a 46-point performance, only two shy of Brown's single game individual high record. That is 48 set by Harry Platt against Northeastern more than 30 years ago in 1938.

Michigan is at home Saturday against Wisconsin and Purdue is at home against Iowa.

Under a special agreement, the NIT can select more than one Big Ten team for its tournament but must first select the conference runnerup. In case of a second-place tie, the NIT could select one or both teams.

Michigan clinched at least a second-place tie as super-soph Henry Wilmore scored 35 points. His output was equaled by Iowa's great guard, Fred Brown.

Purdue kept alive its hopes for an NIT bid by battling from behind to defeat Wisconsin. Larry Weatherford led the Boilermakers with 28 points and Bob Ford added 23.

Sophomore George McGinnis scored 25 points in Indiana's loss to Ohio State in a rough game in which 40 fouls were called.

Rudy Benjamin collected in 20 points in Michigan State's victory over Minnesota.

Illinois, suffering its eighth straight Big Ten loss, fell behind in the early going against Northwestern and never recovered as Rick Sund scored 30 points. Nick Weatherspoon was high for Illinois with 24.

Sharpie Posts Early Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Killarney Sharpie celebrated an early St. Patrick's Day Tuesday night, taking the $6,000 feature pace at Roosevelt Raceway by a length over Happy Hal N.

The third season victory for 7-year-old, timed in 2:04 2-5, returned $5.80. Scottia's Dream was third.

Meadow Wann also tallied a one-length victory in the $1,600 feature pace at Batavia Downs. The 2:12 3-5 winning mile bettered times of Victor Tide and third-place Quick William. Meadow Wann paid $4.80 to win.

Boxers to Receive About 25 Per Cent

NEW YORK (AP) — It'll take a Ph[illegible] to [illegible] pute the tax man's take of the $5 million purse that Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali collected for The Fight.

But a New York tax law expert, ticking off a lot of "ifs," roughly figured that Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali netted slightly more than 25 per cent—of $1.29 million—of their combined checks. Each got $2.5 million.

And while Ali lost the heavyweight title fight, he wound up with a smaller tax bit.

Ali will keep $736,476, close to the $600,0000 figure he estimated earlier. Uncle Sam, New York State and New York City share the rest.

Frazier's corporate structure complicates the computation of his cut, which was figured at about $556,151.

Raiders, Allen's One-Two

SAUGERTIES — Raiders (10-1) and Allen Bus Lines (9-2) kept pace in the Saugerties Athleitic Association basketball league.

Trailing 36-29 at the half, Raiders devastated Ferroxcube 52-30 in the second half for an 83-66 victory. Allen's led all the way to down Naccarato Insurance, 83-73. In the other games, Irish (6-6) routed Anchorage (2-10), 94 to 71. Ferroxcube smelled upset againts the Raiders but a 26-9 barrage in the third quarter shattered their hopes. Roch Koegel led with 16 points but five other Raiders were in double figures. Pete Stenfurth potted 21 for Ferroxcube.

Naccarato's suffered a severe blow against Allen's when ace scorer Gene Bruno was forced out of the game in the early minutes because of an injury. Frank Allen led the winners with 26 points and Ron Lindsay had 18. Jack Naccarato with 23 and John Barbanti 24 were top Naccarato gunners.

John Carnright paced the Irish with 27 points and Tim Bowens dunked 25 for Anchorage.

Money Bowlers Eighth With 3177

SCHENECTADY — Money Bowlers, a 589 average entry, fired a 3177 gross to move into eighth place in the handicap division of the 13th annual Schenectady Press Bowling Tournament.

Meanwhile, another Kingston entry, P & B Pro Shop was shunted from first to third place in the scratch division with a 2913 series rolled on Feb. 21.

Led by Robert Burgher's 685 gross and 681 by Al Sonnenberg, Money Bowlers posted 2751 in the wood and had 426 pins handicap. Burgher had a scratch series of 628 and Sonnenberg hit 600 even.

In the doubles, Ed Thomas and Sonnenberg grossed 1228 and Jim Dolce and Burgher had 1218. Best showing in the handicap doubles was the 1340 compiled by Howie Gordon and Bill VanGaasbeck, good for 15th place at the moment.

Izzy Bosco, a 164 average bowler, picked the Press tournament to record a career-first 600 series, with 208, 212 and 193 for 611, which with 102 handicap was good for 713, good for 16th place.

Herb Petersen is second in scratch all events with 1855 off 665 team, 620 doubles and 570 singles. Other good totals in gross all events: Van Gaasbeck 1954, Burgher 1929, Sonnenberg 1896, Bosco 1881.

1,500 Gothamites Demand Action to Curb School Deficit

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) —"Every time we come here, we only see the people who agree with us," the black woman said.

"We want to see the upstate Republicans; that's why we're here."

Mrs. Mary Norris, the secretary of school board district four in Spanish Harlem, was one of an estimated 1,500 New York City residents who milled through the Capitol Tuesday demanding immediate action to curb the $40 million budget deficit in the nation's largest public school system.

After some angry words with one of Governor Rockefeller's aides, some shouting and singing, and numerous small meetings with lawmakers, the demonstrators left. They were apparently not much closer to help than when they came.

The students and parents arrived in 30 chartered buses. Some carried signs that included "La Educacion Antes Que Recreacion" (education before recreation) and "Bet On Children, Not Horses."

The demonstrators, wearing heavy winter coats, filled several levels of a stone staircase to hear speeches by friendly Democratic legislators. Then they broke up into smaller groups and clustered in front of key offices of Governor Rockefeller, Assembly Speaker Perry Duryea, and Senate Majority Leader Earl Brydges.

After a 20-minute meeting with Brydges, Dr. Bernard Friedman, the community superintendent of the Bronx district, said he was only mildly optimistic about the chances for help.

Have Extra Glass Of Orange Juice, Says Dr. Pauling

DENVER (AP) — Dr. Linus Pauling, who has suggested big doses of Vitamin C to ward off the common cold, says his critics should save their breath and "have an extra glass of orange juice."

The Nobel Prize-winning chemist says he has been the object of false and misleading criticism since December when he said a daily dose of 1,000 to 5,000 milligrams of Vitamin C would prevent common colds. To arrest a cold, he suggested 10,000 to 15,000 milligrams daily.

Such massive doses, in contrast to the 35 to 60 milligrams generally recommended to prevent scurvy, could have severe effects on the human body, Pauling's critics contend.

Pauling said Tuesday at a news conference, "Vitamin C is about as nontoixc a substance as there is in the world."

He said "half a dozen first-rate studies" back him up.

Severe diarrhea could result from massive doses of Vitamin C, according to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Some members of the medical community say huge doses could increase acid in the urine and lead to painful kidney and bladder stones.

"No one, to my knowledge, has ever gotten sick from ingesting Vitamin C," Pauling said.

Anybody fearing high acid levels in the urine could take the vitamin in the form of sodium ascorbate, he said.

Pauling noted he has recommended that anyone with medical problems consult his physician before embarking on a Vitamin C regimen.

Since Pauling's book, "Vitamin C and the Common Cold," appeared in December, drug stores have been swamped with orders for ascorbic acid which, like oranges, contains Vitamin C.

Pauling cited a study in which 200 persons, taking large doses of the vitamin, had 15 per cent fewer colds than a control group.

Figures for a larger group in another controlled experiment showed a 45 per cent reduction in colds, he said.

Pauling said the medical research communith has "abstained for 20 to 30 years from making an unbiased study of this evidence."

Motorist Hurt On Thruway

KINGSTON

A 22-year-old New Jersey motorist was seriously injured at 6:15 a.m. today when his car went out of control and rolled over on the State Thruway about three miles north of the Kingston interchange.

Trooper J. D. Devine of Troop T investigated and reported the injured man was Charles S. Dooley of Trenton, N. J. The accident happened in the northbound lane, but details were not available as police were unable to interview Dooley because of his condition.

Dooley was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance Service. Troopers said he suffered lacerations of the legs, face, arms and head.

Soliciting Bids For Post Office In New Paltz

NEW PALTZ

Bids are now being solicited for a new post office in New Paltz, to be located near the Town and Village Halls, according to Harold R. Larsen, director of the New York Postal Service Region.

New Paltz Postmaster John D. Dieterich says he is happy to be getting a new post office, "but it's still not going to be big enough."

The new building will house about 5,500 square feet. Dieterich says an adequate post office for New Paltz would contain about twice what the present one does. The present building measures about 3,400 square feet, so Dieterich is calling for a building on the order of 6,800 square feet.

The arrangements for the new post office will have the developer build the building and lease it to the U. S. Postal Service. In this way, the land will remain on the village tax rolls, and the service's capitol investment will be limited mainly to postal equipment.

Bids must be submitted prior to April 2.

Principal, Nun Targets of School Violence

NEW YORK (UPI)—A high school principal was stabbed and a nun at a Roman Catholic school was knocked down Tuesday in sporadic violence at the area's schools.

Ralph Levy, principal of Brooklyn's P.S. 189, was stabbed in the stomach, shoulder and hand by three youths while he was dismissing students. He later was reported in good condition.

The assailant, aged 18 to 20, also took Levy's watch and $18 as a group of pupils watched. Levy was able to crawl into the school and call police.

An unidentified nun at the Queen of the Most Holy Rosary elementary school in Roosevelt, L.I., was knocked down and her habit was torn by a group of teen-agers who invaded the school.

Shortly before the disruption, the school was closed following a series of false fire alarms in the building.

Police said a teacher at a Manhattan junior high school scuffled with two students and the 25-year-old brother of one of the youths.

Police said the scuffle developed when the teacher tried to order the boys from his classroom after they erased an assignment from the blackboard. The teacher was issued a summons for harassment, the two students were given summons for juvenile delinquency and the older brother was arrested for assault.

EMPLOYMENT

ATTENTION JOB APPLICANTS
The Daily Freeman does not knowingly accept Help Wanted ads from employers covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act if they offer less than the legal minimum wage or fail to pay at least time and one-half for overtime hours. The minimum wage for employment covered by the FISA prior to the 1966 Amendments is $1.15 an hour with overtime pay required after 40 hours a week. Jobs covered as a result of the 1966 Amendments require $1.30 an hour minimum with overtime pay required after 40 hours a week. For specific information contact the Wage and Hour Office of the U. S. Department of Labor, 331 Gerard Ave., Bronx, N. Y. 10452, WYandotte 2-1235.

IMPORTANT NOTICE: The New York State Law against Discrimination and the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibits discrimination in employment because of sex unless based on a bona fide occupational qualification. Help Wanted and Situation Wanted advertisements are arranged in columns captioned "Male" and "Female" for the convenience of readers and are not intended as an unlawful limitation or discrimination based on sex.

Dear Abby

'Small' or 'Deep'?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps if our culture didn't make so much of the female bustline, women wouldn't have such a horror of losing it. As an American Cancer volunteer, I drive patients to and from hospitals for X-ray treatments.

One woman I used to drive had neglected her problem for five years and was a terminal patient when I took her for a few final treatments. Imagine, putting off having a lump in her breast examined for fear it was malignant and she'd have to have her breast removed! It was, and she did. But it was too late.

I, myself, fell a victim to cancer, and had to have both breasts removed. The day I came home from the hospital, I helped cook dinner; two days later was in the school car pool again, and progressed from there to the full routine and housework and social activity.

The loss is minimal. Sign me, "BETTER THIRTY INCHES IN THE CHEST THAN SIXTY INCHES IN THE GROUND."

H. G. M.:
HAMILTON, OHIO

DEAR H. G. M.: I wonder how many women are aware of the simple "self-examination" instructions, which are available at every local American Cancer Society office? They're free for the asking.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a very sweet, elderly aunt of whom I am very fond. She lives alone in the country. About four times a year she invites me to dinner, and I know she goes to a lot of trouble to prepare a nice meal. But she always gives me chicken.

The problem is, Abby, I have chicken at home every weekend as I find it is more economical than meat.

My aunt doesn't know that chicken is no special treat for me because she always says, when serving it, "This will be a nice change for you."

Should I tell her it is not a change for me? I don't want to hurt her feelings.

SICK OF CHICKEN

DEAR SICK: Perhaps your aunt always serves chicken for the same reason you have it every weekend. Don't say anything. Eat the chicken and let her think its' a treat. Four more chicken dinners a year won't hurt you.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Reading about "HURT'S" problem, whose husband belittled her only in public, struck a familiar note with me. My father used to do that to my mother. She took it for 25 years, not wanting to create a bigger scene. Finally, fed up, she started giving him some of his own medicine. That surprised everyone, especially Father. Now nothing shuts him up quicker than a sharp comeback from Mother. Goes to show that he really didn't want to get by with it, after all.

HURT'S husband is probably just as fine a man as my father, but because of an inferiority complex he feels the need to bully his wife in the presence of an audience.

Your advice was great, Abby. Tell the old bully off, and he'll eventually back down. And don't worry about the audience. They'll rejoice to see the abused one finally give the browbeater his due.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

Thursday, March 11

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon brings a big opportunity for accomplishing a great deal especially where solid and secure methods are used. You can then make great headway in advancing toward a goal that means the most to you. Get everything precisely right if you want to make the fullest use of today and tonight. Be conscientious.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't waste a single moment of this day's fine aspects since you can get much done and accomplish a great deal. Keep busy whether at home, in school or in the business or cultural world. Do some reading tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get in touch with persons you admire and have a delightful time. Accomplish something of real worth. Particular courtesy to mate is good in p.m. Get fine response.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to make home life far more harmonious and agreeable to your particular needs and desires. Gain the goodwill of persons who are balanced and progressive thinkers—show goodwill yourself to gain it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Contacting persons you like and showing your devotion brings the kind of results you want for the future. Plan some finer system for selling your wares, getting more out of business ventures. Stop dreaming so much.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are in a position now to make more money ethically, and you have only to plan early and then put ideas in motion. Contact the bankers and other experts where money is concerned. Put your heads together for fine results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) The Full Moon inspires you to greater things, whether in the business or social whirl, and then you can have an excellent time as well. Parties can bring you new contacts of worth. Let your conversation be edifying.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show that you will willingly help those who come to you for aid and build up goodwill. Showing affection to others is fine, also, especially those you have neglected for a long time. Do your own thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to get those who are experienced to go along with some good idea you have in mind so that you can get it working with greater facility. You need a change. Gad about socially.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Think over how to have a more pleasing image where the general public is concerned. Look to kin to give you the assistance you need so that you become more successful and efficient. Streamline abode.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Studying new ideas and projects gives new perspective and impetus to your energies at this time. That trip should be planned now. It can bring you the benefits you have in mind and quickly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you get that work done quickly and well, and get your bills paid, you can breathe a sigh of relief and make the future brighter. Hard work results in better health now. Romance improves later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to what others are saying around you and you find you can get a few problems solved easier that way. Sit down with associates and discuss joint plans. Come to a fine new agreement.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those young people who likes to be active but you must teach to channel strength in right direction while young and to have a steadfastness of purpose that is unshakable. There is ability to look at the overall picture and then whittle it down to a workable formula, with an excellent sense of detail. Provide best opportunities for study so that the fine promise here will not be lost for lack of right education.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

STUBBORN DAD: (Q.) My girl friend's father doesn't like the idea of me because I'm 19 and she's 16. But he lets her go out with me. She has to "sneak" out to see me. He knows she does.

She has tried to get him to let me come to their house and meet him, but he yells at her to go out with somebody her own age. I've already met her mother. She seems to think I'm OK, but he's the boss.

What can I do?—Unaccepted in Detroit.

(A.) Shave. Bathe. Dress neatly. Then go to her house at a time when you know her father is there. Knock on the door or ring the bell. If he answers introduce yourself. If someone else answers, ask to see him, and when he comes, introduce yourself.

Act nice. Be sensible. Be friendly. Be respectful. If he is at all sensible himself, he will see how little sense the present arrangement makes, and he will take steps to change it. Goo' luck.

FRIEND AFAR: (Q.) I met a girl at camp and liked her. When camp broke up, I told her I would write her, and I did. She did not write back. I still like her, but what can I do?—No answer in Newark, N. J.

(A.) I assume you wrote her several months ago. She may have been busy at the time, or she may have just been uninterested.

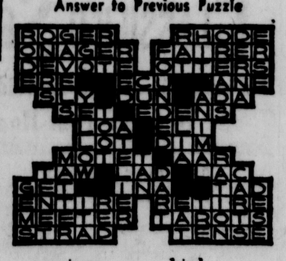

Her attitude could be different now. Write again unless you hear from her.

Whether she writes or not, look around you for someone you can see and talk to in the flesh, and more frequently.

'Mod Squad' Showing Toll

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's television viewers may not have had a chance to see at home Monday night's big boxing match, but ABC on Tuesday night thoughtfully provided "Mod Squad" fans with an opportunity to see Sugar Ray Robinson in action.

If the Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali fight generated a kind of public sports hysteria reminiscent of the 1920s and 1930s, the "Mod Squad" episode seemed inspired by those terrible old sentimental movies of the same period.

Believe, if you can, the retired champ, 11 years away from his last fight, who goes back into the ring just so that his son—a spoiled, sulky kid—can feel more confortable among his fellow students at school. The intrepid "Mod Squad" team was involved because the son had been picked up for attempted burglary.

Robinson—who had Rocky Graziano as his trainer—looked pretty good in the ring scenes but seemed pretty wooden when acting was required. It seemed that "Mod Squad" more than the fighter was showing the toll of years.

"Movie of the Week," which followed, was another pilot for a series, "River of Gold." It was 90 minutes of straight action-adventure built around a couple of carefree young men who live on a sail boat and run around rescuing pretty ladies.

Two standard-model Hollywood leading men, Dack Rambo and Roger Davis, were the heroes in a silly story about treasure beneath the sea and a hunt for a missing girl. Ray Milland, in a small part, stole the show playing a rich, ruthless treasure hunter.

NBC's formal announcement Tuesday of its fall schedule, pretty well leaked around trade circles for more than a week, held few surprises. Biggest was the cancellation of "The Senator" segment of "The Bold Ones." The series-within-a-series which stars Hal Holbrook seemed to be on solid ground.

Although NBC will fold "Four-in-One" after one season, it is pulling two winners out of it. "McCloud" with Dennis Weaver will return as part of a new series, "Mystery Tonight," and "Night Gallery" will have a full season of Rod Serling scripts.

Three series will be spun off "World Premiere" pilot films broadcast recently—"Sarge," with George Kennedy playing a cop turned priest; "Columbo," with Peter Falk as a deceptively indifferent detective, and "The D.A.," with Robert Conrad in the title role.

The late Harold Vanderbilt invented contract bride in 1925. Six years later Ely Culbertson came out with his first book, "The Culbertson System of 1931."

This book was so advanced that even today you will find many of its principles as basic parts of every sound system including JACOBY MODERN, standard American, British Acol, Roth-Stone and Kaplan-Sheinwold.

Ely was the first to suggest the use of four notrump to ask for aces, the grand-slam force and asking bids which are used today.

He was a great player. His bidding was sound. His play distinguished by brilliance.

Today's hand finds Ely making one mild overcall with the west hand and then opening the queen of hearts against South's five-club contract. A sound bid and a normal lead.

South won in dummy and led a diamond to his queen. Ely was on lead with the king. The game was rubber bridge. Most ordinary players would simply lead another heart and force declarer to use up a trump.

Ely saw this play would be hopeless. South surely had seven trumps. Then how could South be hurt? Ely found the way. He played his king of trumps. Without this play South would have ruffed a diamond and eventually lost just one trump trick. After Ely's play he had to lose a diamond and a trump and was down one.

The PX Inquiry

Stripped General on Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stripped of his general's star and accused of taking bribes in Vietnam, retired Army Col. Earl Franklin Cole was called to the Senate witness stand today following allegations he covered up a web of corruption influencing sales to U.S. military clubs around the world.

Cole was scheduled to appear Tuesday but the panel didn't get to him and reset his testimony for today.

Witnesses have claimed Cole repeatedly protected the allegedly illicit sales operations of civilian friends in Vietnam and prevented or whitewashed investigations into their activities.

Most of the testimony about Cole in the past two weeks dealt with his activities as chief adviser to the Army PX and club systems in Vietnam in 1967 and 1968.

Witnesses said Vietnam sales entrepeneur William J. Crum boasted Cole was costing him $1,000 monthly for such services as protecting his slot-machine and whiskey-distributing firms from the police and for causing raid on his competition.

Tuesday, Brig. Gen. Harley L. Moore, provost marshal general of the U.S. Army in Europe, related a new episode in what some senators are calling the Cole saga.

Moore said Cole was relieved of duties as head of the giant Army-Air Force Exchange Service in Europe following an investigation into contracts he had made with Hong Kong merchants.

About a month later, Oct. 10, 1969, Cole disappeared. After a search of several European countires, his staff car was found, and in it was an unlocked briefcase containing two "secret, specific and highly important" documents on military operations in Vietnam, Moore said.

Cole was found two days later and told investigators conflicting tales on travel from Heidelburg to Frankfurt to Munich and back.

Placed under house arrest, Cole was hailed before Gen. James H. Polk, commander of the U.S. Army in Europe, and said three men had offered him $50,000 "to take the Fifth Amendment and keep his mouth shut."

Moore told senators a report closing criminal aspects of the Cole case was "abysmally negligent" and that his own staff investigators were prevented by Pentagon orders from following up to 49 leads on the case in the United States.

Cole was demoted to colonel, stripped of the Distinguished Service Medal he had won in Vietnam and permitted to retire last summer.

At the time the Army would say only he lacked the integrity expected of a general officer.

18 Vote Finally

WASHINGTON (AP) — A constitutional amendment to lower the voting age in all elections to 18 came up for approval by the Senate today, almost 30 years after it was introduced.

Before considering that proposal which has backing of 87 members, the Senate scheduled action on an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy giving the District of Columbia full representation in Congress.

Kennedy wanted his proposal attached to the 18-year-vote amendment. But Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Kennedy's measure would be disposed of first in the interest of saving the voting-age amendment.

The 18-year proposal applies to state and local elections. A bill lowering the minimum age to 18 in all elections passed Congress last year but the Supreme Court held it applies only to federal elections.

As a result, the voting age now is 18 for federal elections but not for state and local elections except in Alaska, Georgia and Kentucky, states that lowered the voting age to 18 on their own. Hawaii has a 20-year minimum.

Supporters of the constitutional amendment want to speed it through Congress so the required 38 states will have a chance to ratify it before next year's elections. The House will act on the proposed amendment next week.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., floor manager for the amendment, said state officials have estimated a dual-age voting system in next year's elections would cost up to $20 million and create confusion and an intolerable administrative burden.

Aside from that, he said, "dual-age voting is morally indefensible and patently illogical. How can we deny younger voters a voice in local affairs when we allow them the right to participate in the selection of the nation's highest officials?"

War Challenger In Angry Reply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bomb throwing is the easy way to dissent and working within the system the most difficult, says the author of a Massachusetts law challenging the legality of the Vietnam war.

"'And yet, these militants get all the support, and people like us, trying to act within the law and uphold the law, get little or none," declared the Rev. John M. Wells.

He spoke angrily as he stood on the steps of the Supreme Court where he seeks to bring the war issue and looked across at the U.S. Capitol, torn by a bomb March 1.

"When I see things like this," Wells gestured toward the Capitol, "I feel like bashing my head against the wall. Things like this can undo in a minute all we've been able to accomplish in two years."

"Throw a bomb and you can get all kinds of publicity, financial support," Wells added. "But file a suit or support a piece of legislation and you have to beg to keep it alive."

Wells, 43, says he is dedicated to the system and conceived his Massachusetts bill to uphold the Constitution, rather than end the war.

It is the constitutional issue which is important, Wells said, and all his efforts are focused on getting the Supreme Court to rule on how the nation legally can go to war.

The Massachusetts law and resultant court cases seek to have the high court decide if the Vietnam conflict is unconstitutional because Congress—given the responsibility by the Constitution—has not declared war.

The Supreme Court has refused so far to consider the question.

In the fall of 1969 Wells, then minister of the First Parish Unitarian Church of Lexington, Mass., drafted a bill and got State Rep. H. James Shea to sponsor it in the Massachusetts legislature.

The bill, passed early last year, required the state attorney general to sue in federal courts to protect any Massachusetts citizen required to serve in foreign hostilities in the absence of a congressional declaration of war.

The Supreme Court refused last fall to take original jurisdiction of the suit, and Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn refiled in U.S. district court in Boston in February.

The suit says 12 Massachusetts servicemen required to serve in an "unconstitutional war, are being deprived of their liberty and perhaps their lives in violation of the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment."

The New York legislature was about to get a similar bill, but researchers found one on the books since 1797 when President John Adams sent troops against the Indians without congressional authorization.

Two suits so far have been brought in New York, and another in California.

Much Anguish Before Cancer Cure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. surgeon general says there is "a waiting period of unknown and possibly anguishing duration" ahead for mankind before scientists can cure cancer.

Although encouraging leads were found during the past decade, adds Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld, it is expected 3.5 million Americans will die from some form of cancer over the coming 10 years unless rapid progress is made against the disease.

Appearing Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee on health, Steinfeld endorsed a concentrated campaign against cancer but argued against a proposal to set up a National Cancer Authority independent of the current National Institutes of Health.

Steinfeld said it would be a serious scientific and managerial mistake to have a new agency do the job, as proposed by a panel of Senate consultants and backed by health subcommittee Chairman Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Steinfeld, assistant Secretary of Health Roger O. Egeberg, NIH Director Robert Marston, and National Cancer Institute Director Carl G. Baker urged backing for President Nixon's program to enlarge cancer efforts within NIH through projected spending of more than $322 million next fiscal year.

Opposition to the independent-agency idea also came from Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., who questioned "the assumption that cancer research is adaptable to the same programmatic approach which has been used to solve defined technological problems on a crash basis" such as putting men on the moon.

San Quentin Racial Tension

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Five inmate stabbings within 24 hours have brought the first general lockup at San Quentin State Prison in two years as authorities sought to check mounting racial tension.

None of the stabbings was fatal.

Warden Louis Nelson ordered the general lockup after the fifth stabbing Tuesday afternoon. He said it "appeared to us we had a racial situation growing."

The 3,250 convicts are confined to their cells except for marches to meals and trips to the hospital. Exercise periods, work details, school classes and vocational training have been canceled.

The lockup will continue, Nelson said, "until we can be assured the men can return to normal routines without fear for their safety."

The last general lockup at San Quentin, in spring 1969, also was caused by attacks of inmates on one another amid racial tensions.

Associate Warden James Park said the initial stabbing was "a personal thing" which "young hotheads took it upon themselves to expand."
